JINGOISM ABROAD,

All England is Excited Just Now,

And is Discussing American Affairs.

Salisbury is Following Blaine Tactics,

Hoping to Win Favor with the People.

John Bull's War-Ship Commanders Reported to be Waiting the Word to Have a Brush with Americans Over the Seal Controversy.

London, March 10.—The news from America is the absorbing topic of discussion, so far as foreign affairs are concerned, and it is intimated strongly that, should the American government attempt retaliation against Canada, England will withdraw from arbitration, and meet any issue that the United States may choose to raise in Bering sea with the plain assertion of the right of English subjects to hunt for seal outside of the recognized limit of United States jurisdiction.

This position is urged by many of the Tories, and is said to be regarded without disfavor, although as yet without open approval at the foreign office.

The tories are desperate for an issue that would arouse jingoism, and rally the country to the support of the government.

Lord Salisbury's eastern policy is generally approved, even by the liberals, and the opinion is expressed in tory circles that the prestige thus gained would stimulate a general support of a course assertive of British and Canadian claims in North America.

There has been a notable disposition of late on the part of the newspapers commonly supposed to be in the confidence of the government, to foster a feeling of hostility to America, and to arouse an impression that Americans are unfriendly to Great Britain.

With this object ridiculous communications have been published, alleged to have been written by Americans and containing bombastic manaces against England. Even if these letters were genuine, they would not be published under ordinary circumstances, and without some special motive on the part of the newspapers giving them space.

There is some reason, however, to believe that they have been written to order, as it is not thought likely that any genuine and sensible American would threaten, as one of these writers has done, to throw two millions of men into Great Britain, and blot it from the face of the earth.

This absurd letter, however, is being made the subject of general comment throughout England as an evidence of American braggadocia and animosity.

The tories also regard the time as favorable for an anti-American demonstration on account of the irritation that exists among large numbers of working people, who have had their wages reduced, or been deprived of employment altogether.

This feeling is especially strong in Wales, and the manufacturing districts, which are also strongly liberal.

In naval quarters, while officials are reticent, unofficially it is stated that the British squadron in the Pacific can be depended upon to do its duty in the event of any encounter with the Americans.

It is well known that, during the recent revolution in Chile, the sympathies of Rear Admiral Charles F. Hotham, and his fellow-officers, were strongly with the revolutionists, and that they would have liked nothing better than a chance to rebuke the course of the American navy.

Not a few of the Chilean naval officers had been trained in company with the British officers, and there was a strong fellow feeling. This feeling has not diminished with Chile's surrender to American demands, and, said a gentleman yesterday, who is persona grata at the admiralty:

"The Americans will make a most serious blunder if they suppose there will be any hesitation on the part of the British navy in defending British subjects in an occupation which Great Britain holds to be lawful."

Rightly or wrongly, the sentiment of the tories, expressed in the clubs, the parliamentary lobbies, and public places generally is that a jingo policy towards America on the Bering sea question would be both safe and politically profitable, and that, even in the gravest event, it would be the best policy to pursue.

The tory St. James Gazette, commenting on the news from Washington, says that a great fuss is being made by the American government over the modus vivendi, and suggests that it would be better to allow sealing to go on as usual, and for the arbitrators afterward to decide what damage, if any, had been done.

AMONG THE IRON MILLS.

The Iron Age Does Not Look on the Present Condition of Trade with Favor.

New York, March 10.—To-day's issue of the Iron Age says: Interest centers in the pig iron markets of the country, which are rapidly approaching a serious crisis.

Our monthly blast furnace statistics show that we entered the month with the largest capacity of work on record, the total being over 139,000 tons per week.

It should be noted, however, that there has been some closing down since the first but as yet far from enough to check the piling up of stocks which is going on very rapidly.

Thus far exceptionally cheap money has helped producers to carry, but any change in the financial situation might cause a good deal of unloading. Reports of low prices come from every section.

In billets, Pittsburg has touched the low watermark with a sale of 10,000 tons at $22.75.

In the steel rail trade Pittsburg records a sale of 16,000 tons, while the eastern mills figure up only 6,000 tons.

There has been some movement in beams in Chicago, where a very large amount of structural work is sure to come into the market. Eastern bridge concerns have taken quite a number of good orders in the west and south, and eastern platemakers continue to capture the lion's share of the western trade. Iron and steel bars and shapes are pretty weak in all sections.

In the metal trade the rumors of negotiations among the leading Lake Superior and Montana producers to restrict the output constitutes the principal item of interest. There is some talk also of a consolidation among the brass and copper mills, who have been competing very sharply of late.

THE EARTH'S INTERIOR

Is Belching Forth in Fire and Smoke in the West.

San Diego, Cal., March 10.—A party of prospectors who were in the new river region of the Colorado desert at the time of the recent earthquakes have just returned and bring in a story of a blazing volcano.

"We were on the lower Laguna mountains, close to the Mexican boundary line, and about midway between San Diego and Yuma," they say, "when the earthquake occurred. It was felt sharply then, and our first thought was to look for an outbreak of the volcano, but to our surprise, instead of the outbreak, smoke and hazy steam, which is always visible in the Cocopiap region, at first entirely disappeared, and the first day after the earthquake the entire desert was as clear as a mirror.

"That night the change came. We heard a rumbling noise and the next day the smoke returned, denser and blacker than ever, and that night from the mountain tops we could plainly see the flames shooting up. The volcano appeared to be about 40 miles away and located in Mexican territory. The flame was not high above the level of the desert, and appeared to come from a pit hole."

WEIGHING THE MAIL.

Upper Sandusky, O., March 9.—Ex-Sheriff Frater and M. D. Kilmer, both of this city, were to-day appointed mail weighing agents for the Big Four and Lake Erie & Western railways respectively.

They are to begin the latter part of the month, and will be engaged 30 days. Mr. Frater's run will be between Sandusky city and Springfield, and Mr. Kilmer's between Sandusky City and Tipton, Ind.

BIDS TOO HIGH.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 10.—Bids for the erection of the Pennsylvania building at the world's fair were opened at headquarters yesterday. No award was made. The average bid was $91,000, this being over $16,000 higher than the limit of the appropriation for the building. The lowest bid was $79,706.

NO WONDER AT DISEASE.

Terrible State of Affairs in New York.

Patients Do Not Receive Proper Attention.

Two Newspaper Reporters Made a Trip to North Brothers Island and Report What They Saw.

New York, March 10.—The World this morning says that two of its reporters landed on North Brothers island at midnight Tuesday night and visited the small pox hospital, the typhus fever pavillion, the scarlet fever and measles wards and the lepers' tent.

The reporters went into pavillion after pavillion and found neither attendants nor doctors, and were appealed to for water and assistance by the neglected patients.

Everywhere the reporters went they discovered traces of neglect and carelessness.

An examination of the dining room revealed the extraordinary fact that all the attendants in the various infectious wards and pavillions and eat their meals together. They step from the bedside of their patients to the common dining table without fumigation or change of clothing.

An attendant admitted that there were no safeguards to prevent a general spreading and intermingling of all the contagious diseases which are supposed to be cared for on the island.

WALES AND HIS WIFE

Have Been Married Twenty-Nine Years.

Recent Death in the Family Prevents the Usual Annual Celebration in England.

London, March 10.—To-day is the twenty-ninth anniversary of the marriage of the prince and princess of Wales. It was on March 10, 1863, that the heir apparent to the English throne took to himself a wife in the person of Princess Alexandra, eldest daughter of the king of Denmark, and on each recurring anniversary the event has been commemorated with family celebrations by the royal family, and large demonstrations of various kinds throughout the country.

This year, however, with the exception of the hoisting of flags on the church steeples and the ringing of bells, there is no observance of the day, the royal family being in mourning for the late duke of Clarence.

The prince and princess, with Prince George and the Princesses Victoria and Maud, are spending the day quietly at Sandringham, where they have received many telegrams expressing the hope that they will live to enjoy many happy returns of the day.

CHILEAN MINISTRY.

New York, March 10.—A special to the Herald from Valparaiso says that the liberal party has selected Eduardo Matta to form a new cabinet, and that it is believed he will select the following gentlemen to compose that body:

Minister of the Interior—Eduardo Matta.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—Senor Costellon.
Minister of Justice—Gaspar Toro.
Minister of Finance—Augustin Edwards.
Minister of War and Marine—Luis Barros Bogono.
Minister of Public Works—Vicente Davila Larrain.

BOUND OVER.

Lima, O., March 10.—Frank Smith, the alleged Griffith robber, was arraigned in Justice Graham's court and pleaded not guilty.

After hearing the evidence he was bound over to court. He was unable to procure a bond of $500 and was taken back to jail.

SALOONS MUST GO.

Hudson, March 10.—The village council by unanimous vote suspended the rules and passed a saloon-closing ordinance similar to the celebrated Alliance ordinance that was sustained by the Ohio supreme court. The saloons are to be closed on May 23.

COULD NOT INDICT.

The Packwood Murder is Still a Mystery.

After Three Weeks of Investigation the Negro, Jenkins, Has Been Given His Liberty.

Deland, Fla., March 10.—After a session lasting nearly three weeks and the examination of 75 witnesses the Volusia county grand jury adjourned yesterday without having returned a true bill in the Packwood murder case.

The negro, Irving Jenkins, who was charged with the quadruple murder, and who had been in custody since December, was discharged, as no evidence was produced against him.

A vigorous effort was made to indict the alleged lover of one of the murdered woman but it failed. The crime is still a mystery.

GAMBLED IT ALL AWAY.

Thirty-One Thousand Invested in Policy.

Strange Case of Infatuation for Chance.

A Trusted Employe Spent His Firm's Money, Kept a Strict Account of it and Will Now Go to the Penitentiary.

New York, March 10.—Society was startled a few years ago by an announcement that a trusted clerk in the employ of one of the city's greatest law firms, himself a lawyer of ability, was an embezzler to the amount of something like $75,000, and that every dollar had been lost at the game of policy.

Men laughed at the story at first and said that policy could not swallow up such a fortune, and that the man must give some other excuse for his inability to produce the money that he had stolen.

He insisted that he had told the truth, however, took his statements to court, after having been indicted by the grand jury, and was there sentenced to a long term in state prison.

Now William A. Losey comes forward with a tale that bears out the statements made by the law clerk, and a carefully kept little account book that proves that a man can reach perdition through a policy shop about as easy as by any other route ever yet suggested by Satan.

Like the Law Clerk.

Like the law clerk, this man is also an embezzler, and like the law clerk, he was implicitly trusted, his employers never dreaming that he could go wrong. Like the law clerk, once more, all of his stealings went into the ever-hungry pockets of the policy men, and now he is under arrest with the state prison doors yawning before his face.

This man robbed those who reposed confidence in him of $31,702.27, and it is to a dream that he lays all of his troubles.

It is a little more than 11 years now since Wm. A. Losey, whose present home is at 526 Monroe street Brooklyn, entered the large paper house of Molleson Bros., of 18 Beekman street, as a bookkeeper. He was singularly clever, a wonderfully expert man at figures, and in two years he had made himself invaluable to the firm.

Then he was promoted to the head bookkeeper's desk and his salary was increased. He was attentive to business, he knew all about the paper trade that there was to know, and his word was law as far as the books were concerned.

Not only was he the head bookkeeper, but the firm made him confidential clerk as well, and no deal was inaugurated in the house that his opinion upon it was not asked.

They Wondered a Little.

Molleson Bros. prospered in their business in these years and their trade increased, but for all that money was scarce at times, and the members of the firm were surprised. The confidential clerk had an explanation, however. He talked about slow collections and the matter was passed over. So time passed up to six months ago, when more complaints went to the head bookkeeper and more talk of the tardiness of debtors was returned by him, and still the confidence reposed in him by Molleson Bros. was complete.

It was in May, 1890, that Losey had his remarkable dream. He was crossing the bridge in company with a friend one morning, when he said that he had dreamed the night before of figures arranged in a peculiar way and set before him so vividly that he could not get them out of his mind.

"That dream is a beatuy," replied the friend, "and you must act upon it immediately. It means that you are to play policy, and that you will surely win."

"But I know nothing about policy," Losey returned, "and I wouldn't know where to go if I did."

"Oh, that's all right," broke in the friend, "it's easy enough to find policy shops in New York, and you don't have to go very far from the postoffice, either. Just come with me and I'll fix you out."

He Plays and Wins.

Losey agreed, and the two went to 202 1-2 Williams street, where the former was coached in the mysteries of the game of policy. He was an apt scholar. He made "gigs" and "saddles" of the figures that had come to him in his dream, and he won. That settled his case. He was a policy "fiend" from then on, and he fairly dreaded the coming of Sunday that would put a stop to his play for a time at least.

In all his play he held to his methodical bookkeeping notions. Win or lose, he set the figures down in his little notebook, and so always knew just how he stood. He won a good deal, but he lost more, and before long he was obliged to call on his employer's money. On more than one occasion he won $1,500 and winnings of $500 were frequent. In all, he says, he won $22,303.95, but kept none of this long. The policy dealers got their money back and the $31,702.37 belonging to Molleson Bros.

No suspicion of Losey's honesty seems to have entered the minds of his employers until last Saturday, when, by the merest accident they discovered an error, showing a shortage in the cash book. He admitted the error immediately, but said it would be easily rectified, and that to protect the firm he would get some money that he had at home and deposit it with them. Then he left the store and did not return until Monday.

All is Discovered.

After his departure the firm summoned an expert accountant, who worked on the books through Saturday night and Sunday, only to prove that Losey was an embezzler to the amount of $31,702.37. On Monday the matter was laid before District Attorney Nicoll and Inspector Byrnes, and then Losey was arrested. He confessed everything, and told the shops in which he had played. Upon getting the names of the policy dealers to whom the man had lost money Inspector Byrnes took 15 men, and, dividing them into squads of three, started down town at 10 a. m. yesterday. The detectives raided the shops named, and arrested George Hamilton, aged 49, of 235 Madison street, at 464 Pearl street; William Spencer, age 28, of 17 Jefferson street, at 202 1-2 William street; Morris Sullivan, age 34, of 3 Madison street, at 155 Park row; Fred Wilson, William Radford and George Morgan, at 21 Ann street, and Thomas Cuneen, who said he lived in Waverley place, at 96 Park row. At police headquarters the men were identified by Losey as those who had taken his money for policy "gigs" and "saddles."

In the afternoon Losey and the dealers were sent to the central office of Justice McMahon, who was sitting at the Tombs. To-day they will be arraigned, Losey on a charge of grand larceny and forgery and the policy men on charges of receiving stolen property (Molleson's money) and keeping gambling houses. Losey says that he also played policy at 308 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn.

The Stricken Family.

Losey lived in good style with his wife and a daughter 20 years of age, in a handsomely furnished flat at 525 Monroe street, at the corner of Lewis avenue, Brooklyn. The building is a five-story brownstone house, and the Losey apartments on the third floor. He was little known in the neighborhood, and is said to have cared little for display. The news of his peculations surprised his neighbors greatly. His wife would not consent to say anything last night regarding the arrest of her husband, and his daughter, it was said by the neighbors, was utterly prostrated by her father's shame. Losey is a handsome man about 50 years of age.

Where the Money Went.

According to Losey's memorandum book, he dropped his money in this way:

At 202 1-2 William street, $9,020.59; at 464 Pearl street, $3,181.50; at 96 Park row, $8,158.19; at 155 Park row, $3,158.19; at 25 Ann street, $1,016.79, and at 308 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, $7,140.10. These figures aggregate $31,702.37.

MITCHELL LUNACY INQUEST.

Hypothetical Cases Will Be Built Up From the Court Records.

Memphis, Tenn., March 10.—Deputy clerks of the criminal court are engaged in transcribing from the stenographer's copy lists of questions to be submitted by the defence in the Mitchell case to non-resident experts in mental diseases and to acquaintances of the Mitchell family in Indiana and Ohio.

The purpose of the evidence to be secured from the experts is to establish a hypothetical case of insanity applicable to Miss Mitchell's defence. The design of the other interrogations is to elicit evidence in support of the theory of inherited dementia. All these depositions are to be offered at the coming inquisition of lunacy.

A Chicago publishing firm has an agent here making arrangements for the publication of the proceedings of the Mitchell case in book form. They will send on a special writer to get up the matter and an artist to illustrate the work with sketches from life.

CORBETT MEANS BUSINESS,

And so Does Sullivan, the Slugger.

Forfeit Up and Covered and Things Pointing to a Fight at an Early Date.

New York, March 10.—James Wakely has received instructions from Charley Johnson, Sullivan's backer, who is at Hot Springs, to cover Corbett's forfeit and to put up $1,500 more, thus bringing the amount up to $2,500.

The money will be put up by Mr. Wakely this afternoon. Mr. Wakely said last night that he believed Sullivan would agree to Corbett's condition to fight before the club giving the largest purse, barring the California Athletic club. He added that the remaining $7,500 of the outside bet would be posted by the backer of each in such installments as they may agree upon.

Wakely hoped that Mitchell would stop his baby talk and post a forfeit as Corbett had done, as every one could see that the chapion meant business. Corbett will go into training immediately at Belfast under the watchful eye of Wm. Muldoon.

A BLOODY BUTCHERY.

Firearms Put to Very Bad Use in Albani.

A Chance Shot Causes a Riot in Which Nineteen Innocent People Are Killed.

Centigne, Montenegro, March 10.—At Kolashian, a town on the frontier of Albani, 40 Albanians, who were escorting a wedding procession, met a number of Montenegrians.

As the Montenegrians were passing the wedding party, several of the Albanians, who were armed with rifles, fired a salute.

Unfortunately one of the weapons happened to be loaded with a ball cartridge, and one of the Montenegro party was shot. Though the shot was accidental, the comrades of the wounded man were infuriated.

They were armed and without hesitation they poured a volley into the wedding party, killing and wounding 19 of them.

The dispatch does not state the fate of the bride and groom. The affair has caused intense excitement, and it is thought that further trouble will follow.

MRS. BLAINE, JR., ILL.

New York, March 10.—At the New York hotel this morning it was reported that the condition of Mrs. J. G. Blaine, jr., who was taken seriously ill yesterday, was slightly improved. She is still a very sick woman, and no one but her physician is allowed in her room.

MERCIER WILL RESIGN.

A Letter to His Loyal Constituents.

The Step Will Undoubtedly Cause Trouble in Canadian Government Circles.

Quebec, March 10.—Mr. Mercier has resigned his seat in the provincial legislature to which he was elected on Tuesday.

It is also said that Mr. Shehyn, the only successful one of the five members of Mr. Mercier's late cabinet, who offered themselves for re-election, will follow his leader's example and retire from public life, and it appears probable that several of the other representatives of the Mercier party will also resign.

Mr. Mercier has issued a letter to his followers announcing his withdrawal into private life. In it he says:

"Calumny has got the better of the constitution and the people have refused to blame the man who had substituted himself for the house of parliament and who dissolved them without reason. All the good I have done has been set aside and ingratitude is my only reward. The verdict of the people is unjust and will be severely blamed by history."

London, March 10.—The Times says Canada is to be congratulated on the defeat of Mercier and adds:

"It generally suffices to leave discredited politicians to the punishment involved in their fall, but in bad cases peculation ought not to be shielded any more than murder."

The Standard hopes that the result of the election betokens a new departure for the young dominion. "Looking at the past, however," it says, "it would be too much to hope even that Mercier has disappeared from politics forever."

THE STORM IN LONDON.

Cold Weather Causing Much Suffering.

Travel Obstructed and the High Price of Coal Causing Distress in the Big City.

London, March 10.—The snowfall continues general throughout Great Britain. In parts of the country, especially the mountainous regions of Cumberland and Wales, the snow causes considerable obstruction to travel.

In London, owing to the chilly weather and the high price of coal, there is much suffering among the poor. The Salvation Army shelters were all crowded last night, and hundreds had to be turned away. The demand upon the food depots and other centers of Salvation Army charity has seldom been as great as now. The problem of the London unemployed is becoming as serious as in Berlin and Vienna.

MEMORY OF BURCHARD

Is Revived by the Secretary of the Treasury.

His Explanation Made Matters Worse.

Mr. Foster Will Have a Rough Time in Newspaper Row Explaining What He Meant by Flannel-Mouthed Irishmen.

New York, March 10.—In the cable news of Friday last appeared the report of an interview with Secretary of the Treasury Foster in London. The following part of it excited no little surprise and unfavorable comment:

"America assimilates all. Among the best we get are the Irish. We take your clan-mouthed Irishman, with his wife and children, all in the rough. In a few years he is absorbed—altered in every physical appearance to rank with our best citizens, lead our municipalities, and in a single generation become one with the best American type."

While the epithet "clam mouthed" was confessedly novel, it was not accepted as felicitous or dignified by American citizens of Hibernian extraction.

Democratic spellbinders filed it carefully in their scrapbooks as excellent campaign ammunition, but the phrase was fading from most persons' memories when Mr. Foster directed attention to it anew by the correction.

He declares that the words he used were "flannel-mouthed," not "clam-mouth"—an emendation with a vengeance, if one may judge from the wry faces of some republican leaders in this city when somebody cheerfully informs them that the late Dr. Burchard's talent for "putting his foot in it" has been bequeathed to Secretary Foster as well as to Col. Elliott F. Shepard.

Among men of Irish birth or descent the prevailing sentiment was that Secretary Foster intended to pay a compliment to the adaptability and energy of the Irish, but that he chose a very unfortunate way of doing it. To quote a figure of speech employed by several, he applied a soothing and elegant poultice to the wound his own hand had inflicted.

Of course the possible political effect of the epithet, be it "clam mouthed" or "flannel mouthed," is what the politicians are trying to estimate or conjecture. Among Irish-American republicans the feeling against "Charlie" is bitter, both because of the uncomplimentary character of his compound adjective and on account of the havoc it may work among Irish-American republicans.

One of these men, who in consequence of holding an office connected with the treasury department refused to permit the use of his name, voiced the opinion of many of his friends when he said: "Of what use are our efforts to convert Irishmen or their progeny to the republican party when prominent men in the party make such breaks as this one of the secretary? You remember the protests made by Irish-American party leaders in this city against the bigoted utterances of Col. Elliott F. Shepard and now we find a cabinet officer talking about flannel-mouthed Irishmen! Utterances of this kind do great harm to the party."

The Cases Dismissed From the Court.

The Verdict Creates Surprise Since Four of the Prisoners Have Already Suffered Death.

Madrid, March 10.—The court martial convened at Xeres to try the remaining prisoners captured in the raid upon the town in January last, to-day delivered a judgment of acquittal.

Upon the result being announced there was great rejoicing among the populace, and much surprise was expressed by the more conservative element. The prisoners were engaged in the same riot for which four of their companions had suffered death.

It is said that the authorities were in dread that the conviction of the prisoners might result in a general uprising, and concluded to be satisfied with the example given by the recent executions.

The Daughters of Laura Secord Ask Government Relief.

Ottawa, Ont., March 10.—Laura Louisa and Mary Augusta Smith, elderly maiden daughters of Laura Secord, who won fame at Queenstown during the war of 1812 by overhearing the discussion of the plan for the purpose and capture of a detachment of British troops, and revealing it after a laborious journey through an unbroken country, causing the capture of the American party, have petitioned the Dominion parliament for relief, being destitute. The grounds for a petition are Laura Secord's services to her country.

Norwalk, March 10.—(Special)—Lucy Pelton Turner, the wife of Orson E. Turner, engineer on the Lake Shore road, died last night at her home in this city, after many years' sickness and suffering.

She was the daughter of Thomas Pelton, of Berlin, Erie county, and a niece of A. D. Pelton, of Toledo.

Peculiar Religious Sect in Indiana.

Little Preaching, Much Praying and All-Night Sessions Constitute the Revival.

Columbus, Ind., March 10.—The most remarkable religious revival ever known here is now in progress at Flat Rock. For seven weeks Rev. Messrs. Stoughton, of Missouri, and Hill, of Anderson, Baptists, have held services nightly.

The meetings are remarkable in many respects. Services begin about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and last all night. The services of Saturday continued all night, all day Sunday and until nearly daylight Monday.

Little preaching and much praying is done. They strip their lower limbs bare and hundreds of them may be seen at the same time washing each other's feet.

The building is an old abandoned church which has been occupied only by bats and owls for years past. Hundreds attend nightly, and many are turned away for want of room.

WRECK REPORTED.

Provincetown, Mass., March 10.—The schooner Eva L. Ferris, from Baltimore for Boston, reports that she passed a wreck, which appeared to be a large two-masted schooner, on her beam ends, about twelve miles southeast of Winter Quarter shoals last Saturday.

A Gale of Seventy Miles an Hour.

Professor Foster's Snow-Laden Hurricanes Are Sweeping Across the Country Doing Great Damage to Property.

Chicago, March 10.—At 9 o'clock last night the thermometer registered 12 degrees above zero in this city. The wind had swept along all day, blowing a fifty-mile gale, and out in Nebraska and Iowa and South Dakota a blizzard was prevailing.

During the heavy wind storm the three-story frame building at North avenue and Mead street, in process of construction, was blown down, and two persons were so badly injured that it is thought they will die. Reports from points throughout the state indicate the fiercest blizzard of the season prevails, blocking travel on streets and railroads.

Were Out All Night.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10.—At Grand Forks the storm was so severe that the hackmen refused business and the large audience at the Metropolitan theater was forced to remain until almost daylight before the storm abated sufficiently to allow them to go home.

Fergus Falls, Minn., reports great damage done to roofs and glass. It was dangerous for men to cross the street.

At Winnipeg, two houses were thrown down. The thermometer fell 60 degrees at Northfield in a few hours.

At Duluth the streets were deserted.

The following extreme velocities were reported: Huron, 70 miles an hour; Moorhead, 60; St. Paul and Bismarck, 48; St. Vincent, 42; Lacrosse, 34.

Snow-Laden Hurricane.

West Superior, Wis., March 10.—A snow-laden hurricane swept down from the west yesterday. The storm did not interfere materially with traffic until about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, when the wind and snow came with constant and redoubled force and pedestrians had the greatest difficulty to force their way against the cutting blast or see where they were going.

Horses attached to vehicles refused to face the blizzard. The street car company was tied up early in the day.

Trains and yard engines practically gave up the struggle before 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Toward night the mercury commenced to fall rapidly.

Early action was taken to get school children and lady teachers home. Sleighs, hacks and carriages were pressed into service. So difficult, however, was it to send teams against the storm that many of the children were driven to the nearest hotels.

May Have Perished.

It is rumored that there are many persons missing, and there are many anxious ones. This is the worst storm in the history of Superior.

The window panes were blown out of houses in some instances.

A Strike Feared on the Pennsylvania Lines.

Disturbances at Indianapolis Liable to Cause Serious Trouble All Through the System.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 10.—The strike of the employes in the Pennsylvania Railroad company's shops here, which began three weeks ago, now seems likely to affect the entire system. The several carloads of men who have been brought here from the east since the beginning of the strike were persuaded not to go to work until yesterday. Then the company succeeded in getting into the shops 13 men brought from Philadelphia.

The executive board of the Machinists' union is in session and it is thought probable that the strike will be ordered on the entire system against piece work.

GIVEN TO THE SENATE.

The Arbitration Treaty on the Seal Question.

It is Signed by Blaine and Pauncefote.

Text of the Document That Will Create Much Discussion and Become of International Interest.

Washington, March 10.—The arbitration treaty has been submitted to the senate for consideration.

The preamble recites the desire of the governments of the United States and Great Britain for an amicable settlement of the questions arising between them concerning jurisdictional rights of the United States in Bering sea, and also concerning the preservation of the fur seals in the sea and the rights of citizens or subjects of either country as regards the taking of seals in these waters.

Therefore they have resolved to submit the questions to arbitration, and the plenipotentiaries—Secretary Blaine and Sir Julian Pauncefote—have agreed to the treaty.

The first article of the document recites that the questions mentioned in the preamble shall be submitted to a tribunal of arbitration, to be composed of seven arbitrators—two to be named by the president of the United States, two by her Britannic majesty; the president of the French republic is to be requested to name one, the king of Italy to name one, and the king of Sweden and Norway to name one.

The seven arbitrators are to be jurists of distinguished reputation in their respective countries. In the event of the failure of the three last named persons to designate arbitrators within two months after request, then the vacancy is to be filled in such manner as the high contracting parties shall agree.

Article 2 provides that the arbitrators shall meet in Paris within 20 days after the delivery of the counter case mentioned in article 4; all questions, including the final decision, to be determined by a majority of the arbitrators. Each of the contracting parties is also to name one person to attend the tribunal as its agent.

Article 3 provides that the printed case of the two parties and all the evidence shall be delivered in duplicate to each of arbitrators and agents within three months of the date of the exchange of ratification of this treaty.

Article 4 provides that within three months following, each party may likewise deliver a counter case and additional evidence in reply to the other party. An additional allowance of 60 days' time may be granted upon application.

Article 6 names five points which shall be submitted to the arbitrators in order that the award shall embrace a decision upon each of the points. The points are as follows:

1. What exclusive jurisdiction in the sea known as the Bering sea, and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein, did Russia assert and exercise prior and up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States.

2. How far were these claims of jurisdiction as to seal fisheries recognized and conceded by Great Britain.

3. Was the body of water now known as the Bering sea included in the phase "Pacific ocean" as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia; and what rights, if any, in the Bering's sea were held and exclusively exercised by Russia after said treaty.

4. Did not all the rights of Russia as to jurisdiction and as to the seal fisheries in Bering's sea east of the water boundary in the treaty between the United States and Russia of the 30th of March, 1867, pass unimpaired to the United States under that treaty.

5. Has the United States any right, and if so, what right, of protection or property in the fur seals frequenting the islands of the United States in Bering sea when such seals are found outside the ordinary 3-mile limit.

Article 7 provides that if the determination of these questions shall leave the subject in such position that the concurrence of Great Britain is necessary to the establishment of regulations for the protection of the seal the arbitrators shall determine what concurrent regulations are necessary, and over what waters they shall extend, on which point they may consider the report of the joint commission. Both parties agree to co-operate to secure the adhesion of the other powers to such regulations.

Article 8 recites that the parties have been unable to agree upon a reference of the question of liability for the injuries sustained in connection with the claims presented, and agree that in order not to delay arbitration they must hereafter submit to the arbitrators any question of fact involved in such claims and ask for the findings thereon, the question of liability to be the subject of further negotiations.

Article 9 recites the agreement by the parties to appoint two commissioners (who have already completed their work) to make the investigation contemplated in article 7, and includes the terms of agreement on that point. From this agreement it appears that the reports of these commissioners are not to be made public until they shall be submitted to the arbitrators.

Article 10 provides that each government shall pay the expenses of its commissioners.

Article 11 stipulates that the decision of the tribunal shall, if possible, be made within three months from the close of arguments on both sides.

Article 12 provides that each government shall pay its own agent and expenses of counsel and the arbitrators appointed by it. Other expenses are to be divided equally between them.

Article 13 requires the arbitrators to keep a record of their proceedings and employ necessary officers.

Article 14 binds the high contracting parties to consider the proceedings of the tribunal as full, perfect and final settlement of all the questions referred.

Article 15 (the last) provides for the ratification of the treaty by the president (by and with the advice and consent of the senate) and the queen and the exchange of ratifications at Washington or London within six months from its date, or earlier if possible

A REMARKABLE CAREER

Was That of the Dead Miner, Van Zandt.

Romance of the Western Mineral Fields.

From Waiter in a Restaurant to Capitalist to Meet Death by His Own Hand in London.

New York, March 10.—Ferdinand Suydam Van Zandt, who committed suicide in London recently, has probably had as romantic a career as any young New Yorker of the present generation.

His rise to wealth and influence was sudden, and his suicide in a London hotel has been inexplicable to his many friends in this city and Newport.

He is particularly well known in the latter place, being a third cousin of ex-Gov. Van Zandt, of Rhode Island, and having lived in Newport for several years past in the Carey Cottage with his wife, who is the daughter of Sir John Lubbock.

Van Zandt had no money and but little influence twelve years ago. At that time he turned up in Leadville, Col., a "tenderfoot" from New York, but with a hearty and straightforward manner which won him many friends from the outset.

He was a tall, powerful and remarkably handsome man, with some theoretical knowledge of mining acquired in Columbia college, but willing to fight his way in the world and to "rough it" in his new surroundings.

When Van Zandt landed in Leadville in 1879 he had no money, and he accepted the first position which offered itself, while he could look around for a better opening. In this way he became cashier in a restaurant, and subsequently, when on the crest of a wave of luck, he used to often laugh over those early experiences. He only remained in the restaurant a few weeks, and, indeed, only kept the place as offering a good vantage ground to survey the general field and form useful acquaintances.

It was quickly seen that the new arrival was a valuable man, and labor being scarce and a boom on he received many offers of employment in the mines. Several parties were anxious to secure him, but he finally went with the owners of the Adelaide mine, of which he became assistant manager.

The Adelaide was in Stray Horse Gulch, in the outskirts of Leadville, and Van Zandt had 125 to 150 men under him in his new position. As soon as he got broken into the work the manager of the mine came east, leaving Van Zandt in sole charge of the operating of the property.

Then a "war" broke out with the owners of the adjacent mine. They had followed a drift of silver ore from one direction which the Adelaide had been working from another end. Without stopping to call in the assistance of the courts, the miners of the adjoining property proposed to follow up their lead, regardless of the rights of the Adelaide.

Van Zandt felt that he was in the right, according to the existing law on the subject, and he prepared to defend the rights of the Adelaide mine by barricading the drifts and carrying on the war under ground. He marshalled his men and kept his post day and night, completely outflanking the enemy. They had thought that in the absence of the manager they could frighten Van Zandt, but he took a bold stand and maintained his ground, much to the admiration of the disinterested mining gossips of Leadville.

About this time a friend of his came out from New York, a young fellow named Potter, who stopped for a while with Van Zandt in Leadville. Then Potter started for the interior of New Mexico and disappeared. His relatives wrote to Van Zandt at Leadville and he left there to follow up the trail of the missing man.

Van Zandt found that Potter had incautiously displayed a large roll of bills at Albuquerque and, some distance outside of town, had been waylaid by three Mexicans, who killed him for purposes of robbery. Vigorous and fearless, Van Zandt apprehended two of the miscreants and brought them to Albuquerque.

As soon as the facts were known there a wagon and a couple of ropes were secured and summary justice was administered to the murderers of Potter. Their dead bodies were swinging from a telegraph pole within a few hours of their being brought into the town by Van Zandt.

He returned to Leadville and stayed there until early in 1882. Then he came to New York and met Charles G. Francklyn, who owned some mining property in Utah, which he was anxious to realize upon. Van Zandt offered to take it to Europe for sale. He was just the man to make a successful promoter of American mining companies in European capitals, being a practical and scientific miner, as well as a man of pleasing manners and address, capable of holding his own anywhere.

London was his objective point, and he took care to provide himself beforehand with the proper credentials.

Poor Sam Ward, then in the sunset of his fame and power, gave Van Zandt letters of introduction to Lord Roseberry, Lord Reay and other influential men in the British metropolis. They were of inestimable value in securing a foothold for the new arrival, who, after the first acquaintance, relied upon himself to make his way.

When he sold the mining property in London and cleared $100,000 as commission for doing so, Van Zandt did not forget Sam Ward. It was recalled in this city yesterday that his treatment of Mr. Ward was characteristic of the man, of whom everybody speaks in the highest terms, for he is said to have presented him with $20,000.

It was through the acquaintance thus formed that Van Zandt met his wife. She had been Amy Harriet Lubbock, eldest daughter of Sir John Lubbock, by his first wife. In March, 1877, she was married to Andrew Walter Mulholland. During the honeymoon she was taken ill with Roman fever in the Eternal City, and just as she was recovering, her husband was taken sick and died. That was in June, barely three months after the wedding. Mrs. Mulholland became Van Zandt's wife in 1884.

Meanwhile his fortunes had risen steadily. The commission on the sale of the Utah property was the first large amount he ever possessed. He secured the services of a former foreman and sent him into Montana to look out for promising mining properties. This man found the famous Blue Bird mine. He recommended Van Zandt to buy it and the bargain was quickly closed.

The Blue Bird developed rapidly, being what is called in the vernacular "a whale." The mine was soon paying over $50,000 a month to Van Zandt. The Blue Bird was in the same country as the Anaconda, the Alice and other famous copper mines. Its output at times rose to $25,000 a week, and it is still well up on the list as a producer, the output for the week ending Feb. 27 having been $14,992.

Mrs. Van Zandt took as much interest in the Blue Bird mine as her husband. She had accompanied him to Butte, Mont. A gentleman who met her there said yesterday:

"Mrs. Van Zandt was a charming woman, as her husband was a charming man. She used to go down in the Blue Bird mine and watch the work in the drifts and headings, and she really acquired a good knowledge of mining, which she used to say was one of her accomplishments."

Van Zandt's romantic career in the mining countries of the west was so remarkable as to secure embodiment in literature. He was the hero of Mrs. Foote's well-known story of "The Led-Horse Claim," which, after magazine popularity, was published in book form, and he sat for the illustrations which adorn the work.

A MAINE WOODS HERMIT

Who Has Been a Pinkerton Detective—His Cabin Home.

A trifle more than ten miles north of the Katahdin Iron Works, says a writer in the Boston Globe, in the very heart of Maine's virgin forests, lives an old hunter and guide named Edward Young. Every seeker after nature in those parts knows him well.

He is, perhaps, the greatest living example of patience of the present age.

He has devoted all his rainy days and spare hours for the past ten years in building a log cabin to meet his own peculiar views and requirements.

The only matters that take him from this duty are the necessity for visiting his traps and acting as guide for the occasional tourist or fisherman.

According to his own figures and the plans of the structure he proposes erecting before he settles down to study housekeeping it will require 25 years yet to complete the work.

Mr. Young lives entirely alone. If he has any relatives he never speaks of them, nor does he form any close friendships.

At different times he has stated that he was once a Pinkerton detective, and he frequently relates anecdotes of his career as a sleuth on the trail of evil-doers.

Most of his detective work, he says, was confined to the western states. Joliet seems to have been a favorite stamping ground, possibly on account of the prison located there.

Finally he became weary of this world's wickedness and sought the peaceful seclusion of the Maine woods.

The cabin to which he is devoting so much of his time is a unique looking affair now, and will be worth going miles to see a quarter of a century hence, should he live to complete the work proposed.

Originally the cabin was the sort ordinarily thrown up by the improvident hunter for his home. But Mr. Young is distinctly a man of ideas, and is possessed also of the necessary executive ability and persistence to carry them out.

No sooner was the little cabin, measuring 6 by 10 feet, finished, than he must needs add an L. The next season he added a wing.

Another year saw another wing in place. This was followed in due time by a second story.

Still he was not satisfied, and, his architectural ability proving to be equal to his desires, he added another L, which connected with the main structure by an overhead gallery.

After these many additions he thought the front of the house looked homesick, so he planned and built a covered veranda.

About this time he conceived the idea of a varigated open fireplace, from which the flames of a big back log would be reflected from the stones of many hued and brilliant quartz, which were scattered all about that section. Sooner said than done, but he was not easily discouraged.

In his long walks he kept an eye constantly on the alert for stones of peculiar shapes and colors.

It mattered not if he found a satisfactory stone 15 miles from home, or whether the stone weighed 10 pounds or 100. Up it went to one of his sturdy shoulders if it struck his eccentric fancy, and eventually it went into that fireplace, which became as the apple of his eye.

When completed the fireplace was really beautiful and did great credit to his artistic eye; but, alas! smoke had not been taken into consideration, nor the thick soot that quickly gathers from the combustion of half-green firewood. In a very few days the pretty masonry was all of one color, and has remained so to this day.

However, he says, with a philosophical sigh: "It was mighty handsome while it lasted."

Mr. Young has the utmost confidence that he will be granted lease of life sufficient to complete the construction of his erratic dwelling and to occupy it for many years after. As he has not yet reached the age of three score years, this is, of course, possible.

His cabin is a great resort for embryo hunters and anglers from Bangor and surrounding cities, and he frequently accompanies parties on long tramps through the woods, which to him are as an open book.

One can't help observing that he has a leaning toward the Anarchist; but he doesn't exactly side with anybody.

In fact, the world is all wrong and he is all right. To give his views on the various topics on which he claims to be an authority would fill a book, and his views on such things are as uncertain as the plans of his house.

Possibly his greatest hobby is finance. If the money kings of the world would only take his advice—but they won't. He can't understand their obstinacy, but it remains a fact, and he's very sorry for them.

His kindness was never better shown than by his tramping to a hotel one night, 12 miles distant from the camp where a tourist was sick, and returning before morning with a bottle of whisky.

Frank Baldwin died at Akron of blood-poisoning caused by allowing a small piece of glass to remain in a finger which had been cut.

A young man named Walter Williams was arrested yesterday by Detectives Carew and Kruse on the serious charge of assault with intent to rape. Williams is a painter, and it is alleged that during last December while he was giving lessons to a young woman named Katta Flammond, he assaulted her with criminal intent, but was prevented from accomplishing his purpose by the appearance of the young woman's mother at an opportune moment. He will be tried in police court to-morrow morning.

THEY HAD A GOOD TIME

At the Anniversary of the First Congregational Sunday School.

The anniversary of the First Congregational church was a most enjoyable event. At 6:30 o'clock over 500 people sat down to supper at well-filled tables. Ninety children of the infant department were provided with high chairs and graced the banquet board with their dignified presence. The program was carried out as given in the Bee yesterday, with one addition, the little 2-year-old daughter of O. S. Brumback stood up on the platform and recited a bit of poetry. It brought down the audience. The entire program was very enjoyable and the occasion will be remembered as one of many happy events participated in by the members of that Sunday school.

THE CARPENTERS

Held an Interesting Meeting Last Evening.

A meeting of the Carpenters' union was held last evening. Addresses were made by President Booth of the Central Labor union and Vice President Fellows. Mr. Voit also spoke. After the meeting he presented the following petition to be signed:

To the Honorable the General Assembly of the State of Ohio:

Gentlemen—The undersigned hereby respectfully petition your honorable body to enact the legislation necessary to prevent the useless waste of natural gas in the state of Ohio.

About 25 of those present affixed their names.

The chairman of the meeting stated that the carpenters would put the card system into effect the coming season, and that all carpenters would be compelled to join the union or leave the city. He said that the reports of the large amount of building going on in the city this spring has caused carpenters from other places to flock to Toledo. The initiation fee until the first of April will be reduced from $5 to $2.

BISHOP HORSTMANN.

His Welcome at Cleveland—Synopsis of the Response.

Bishop Horstmann, of this Catholic diocese, was installed at Cleveland yesterday with the ceremonies appropriate to the occasion. Bishop Foley preached the sermon, and at its conclusion Father Boff welcomed the new bishop, in behalf of the clergy and laity. The Cleveland World, in its report says:

Bishop Horstmann responded in an eloquent manner. The bishop is a smooth and easy speaker, with a clear and distinct voice. He took for his theme, "Glory be to God on high, and peace on earth, and good will to all men." During the course of his remarks he said his mission here is to give glory to God by being faithful to his charge as bishop of the diocese of Cleveland. He said that he hoped to be just and impartial in his dealings with his people, and that no national feelings will be allowed to interfere with his work. The bishop expressed his appreciation to both the clergy and laity of the diocese for the excellent reception tendered him Tuesday night, and concluded by asking both priests and people to pray for him that his administration will be attended with good results.

A PLEASANT EVENT.

Reception Given by the Church Society Ladies to Mrs. Marlatt.

Ladies of the various churches and missionary societies of the city yesterday afternoon gave a pleasant reception to Mrs. Josephine Marlatt, at her rooms on Warren street. It was an affectionate testimonial of regard and appreciation. Mrs. Marlatt is the feminine Gen. Slevin of Toledo. She knows all the poor and destitute homes, and they know her as a frequent visitor. The sixtieth anniversary of her birth was chosen as the day on which to do her this pretty honor. Each caller brought a souvenir of the day, and many valuable and useful gifts were among them. Mrs. Marlatt read a prose-poem sketch of her life, which was gracefully written and interesting. She is the eldest of ten children, all of whom are dead, herself and her mother, aged 82 years, being the only remaining members of her family. She has one son, a fine young man in a business house in the city. Mrs. M. has been widowed a good many years, and has spent nearly all the time in mission work. She looks ten years younger than her age, and is a cheerful, helpful, able Christian woman. A purse of silver was one substantial token of regard left by her friends.

Among birds, the swan lives to be the oldest, in extreme cases reaching 300 years; the falcon has been known to live 162 years. An eagle died in 1819 which had been caught 104 years before, and was then quite old. A white-headed vulture, which was caught in 1706, died in the aviary at Schonbrun, near Vienna, in 1824. Parrots live more than a century. Water birds have a long life, exceeding that of several generations of men. Ravens also live over 100 years. In captivity magpies live from 20 to 25 years, and still longer in freedom. The common hen attains the age of from 15 to 20 years. Doves live 10 years, and the little singing birds from 8 to 17 years. The nightingale's life is the shortest, 10 years being the longest, and next comes the blackbird, which never lives longer than 15 years.

LOVED BY A CRAZY MAN.

Sad Plight of a Pretty Brooklyn Girl.

A Crank Who Persists in Wanting to Wed Her.

He Carries a Revolver and His Poor Marksmanship Was the Only Thing That Saved Her Brother's Life.

Brooklyn, March 10.—William Howell, superintendent of the Arverne Improvement company, has lived at Arverne, L. I., for a year.

Previous to that time he had for seven years lived near Woodhaven, where he was superintendent of the First Presbyterian Sunday school.

More than a year ago a strange man came to him one day, and abruptly asked for the hand of his daughter, a pretty blonde, only 16 years old. Mr. Howell very naturally dismissed the fellow, whom he took to be a crank. He said nothing to his daughter about the incident.

Then a stream of threatening letters began to arrive from the man. Fearing personal injury, and not wishing to make the matter public, Mr. Howell finally moved with his family to Arverne. The annoyance ceased for a time, but one Sunday in December Miss Howell reported that while returning from church she had met a man, who asked her to marry him. The description given by the girl showed that it was the same person who had visited her futher.

Mr. Howell sent his daughter away to visit an aunt. During her absence the threatening letters were renewed. Upon several occasions during Mr. Howell's absence a strange figure was seen crouching about the house, and peering into the windows. After his visits ceased Miss Howell returned home. On a recent Sunday evening, while the girl was coming from church her tormentor sprang from behind a tree and grasped her by the throat. Her screams were heard by a young man near by, and upon his approach the fellow fled.

Last Sunday afternoon while Miss Howell and her brother were strolling along the beach the crank suddenly confronted them, asking the young woman to take a walk with him. Her brother remonstrated with the intruder, but the latter seized Miss Howell's arm, when the boy struck him on the head. Then the man drew a pistol from his pocket and fired at the lad, the bullet grazing the side of his head. The murderous fellow took to ris heels and was soon out of sight.

All efforts to capture the man having failed, the case has been put into the hands of Detectives Ryan, Wilson and Herbert, who hope to have him under arrest within a few days. He is described as a tall, slim man, with large black eyes, a black mustache and a stern voice. When seen upon the last two occasions he wore a short sack coat, dark brown trousers, a light gray overcoat, black Derby hat and shoes with patent leather tips.

DEATH SAVED MR. FLACK.

The Indictments Against Him Quashed.

Rare Good Luck of the Tammany Chieftain.

The Demise of His Much Abused Wife Causes the Case Against Him to be Thrown Out of Court.

New York, March 10.—The last chapter—save one which, more than two years ago, was woven around the life of James A. Flack—was brought to a close in the court of general sessions, when Judge Cowing handed down a decision, by the terms of which all the indictments against the former sheriff of New York city were dismissed.

The decision was the result of a motion made on the part of Flack and his son, nearly a month ago, by Judge Horace Russell. Inasmuch as there was no opposition on the part of the district attorney, Judge Cowing had nothing else to do but grant it.

Mr. Flack, who is living with his son at 719 Quincy street, Brooklyn, was found at his book-bindery establishment, 3 North William street. "There is nothing whatever for me to say," he said, "save that the indictments ought to have been quashed long ago. In fact, they ought never to have been found. The fact that I am free from them will not affect my present course of life."

The arrest of Flack and the subsequent disclosures are still fresh in the public mind. Although a ward politician all his life, he never appeared prominently before the public until he was elected county clerk on the Tammany ticket. So well did the "bosses" think of him that when Hugh J. Grant was nominated for mayor Mr. Flack was invited to run for sheriff, and was elected.

About the middle of September, 1889, it came out that Sheriff Flack had entered into a conspiracy with Lawyer Joseph Meeks, ex-Judge Monell, Susan Cherry, who was otherwise known as Susan T. Raymond, and his son, William L. Flack, for the purpose of procuring a fraudulent divorce. Monell and Meeks acted for Flack in the matter, and the story was to the effect that Mrs. Flack's signature had been forged to the complaint. Joseph Meeks, who was appointed by Judge Bookstaver referee, reported in favor of the divorce being granted, and it was. The records in the case showed that some one had personated Mrs. Flack before the referee.

Public opinion eventually became so strong that the district attorney was forced to take action. The grand jury found indictments against all the parties. A few weeks later Monell died.

James A. Flack and his son were tried for conspiracy, the wife and mother testifying against them to the effect that she had never signed any complaint in a divorce suit. Both were convicted, but appealed to the general term, where the conviction was sustained. It was then taken to the court of appeals, which in January of last year reversed the judgment and ordered a new trial.

The papers have been lying in the pigeon holes of the district attorney's office ever since. Joseph Meeks, who was also brought to trial, did not appeal from the sentence of 30 days in the city prison and a $500 fine. He paid the money and served his time.

During the trial it was proved that Flack had for two years been living with Susan Cherry, otherwise known as Mrs. Susan T. Raymond, and that a boy had been born to her. Flack wanted to get rid of his wife legally, in order to marry Mrs. Raymond and make her child legitimate. After the first trial and conviction Gov. Hill removed Flack from the office of sheriff and appointed Gen. Daniel E. Sickles as his successor.

Before Judge Cowing acted on the application to dismiss the indictments he asked District Attorney Nicoll to prepare a statement. The latter did so, and in waiving all objections to the motion of ex-Judge Russell, he states his reasons. These are in effect that Mrs. Flack being dead, and she being the chief witness, it would be almost impossible on a new trial to secure a conviction, and it would be unwise to put the city to so much expense.

WHO KNOWS?

Philosophy assumes to tell
How happened this, how happened that;
Reasons of sequence passing well,
By process none can cavil at.

If this be true, then that must be;
And so on it seems very plain;
But what rules human destiny?
We ask and cannot ascertain.

The deeds we do, the words we say,
May serve a purpose, or may not;
Some soul may be a wreck to-day
Through some light word, long since forgot.

"Mistakes," says science; yet the wise
Whose far gaze traces the rolling spheres,
Grope blindly through life's mysteries
And weep, with others, human tears.

Philosophy cannot forecast
The workings of one human breast;
Nor trace the springs of action, past;
Life is a riddle at the best.

We plan what we shall be and do,
While bars of fate around us close.
That strain or strike may not break through;
We plan and purpose, but—who knows?

PLAYED A NOBLE PART.

A Hero Where Heroism Was Wanted.

George Danzer's Work in a New York Fire.

Many People Owe Their Lives to the Brave Cigarmaker Who Faced Death to Save Them.

New York, March 10.—George Danzer is an unassuming young cigarmaker, known to his acquaintances as a good-natured young fellow, a handy man at a ball or party, and a good hand at a game of pinochle. He indulged in his favorite game until an early hour yesterday morning, and that is how he became the central figure in a most heroic rescue.

He was returning to his home in Elizabeth street at 3 o'clock from a card party on Avenue A. As he passed through East Third street he heard a woman scream and at the same time noticed a cloud of smoke issuing from the hallway of the five-story building at 136. He dashed through the smoke and groped his way up the stairs, shouting at the top of his voice, to alarm the inmates.

As he reached each landing he pounded vigorously on the doors, knowing that the eight families in the tenement would be suffocated if they did not leave the building at once.

His efforts met with success, for in a few minutes the building was alive with people, rushing about in wild confusion, blinded by the smoke, unable to descend the stairs and forgetting the other means of escape.

"Run for the fire escape," shouted Danzer. The cry seemed to give new life to the people who rushed to teh windows and descended in safety to the ground.

Saved the Children.

But on the second floor Danzer had heard the cry of children and, immediately after shouting the directions to the people, he rushed blindly through the smoke and kicked open the door leading to the apartments of Henry B. Schlosser.

Mr. and Mrs. Schlosser were trying to hurry their eight children toward the fire escape, but several of the younger ones, too frightened to obey, were crouched on the floor, half-suffocated with the smoke. Danzer picked up two of the little ones, turned and fled through the smoke to the street.

Then up again he dashed and tucking a child under each arm again made his way through the ever-thickening smoke to the street.

Once more he started to ascend the stairs, but fell back, overcome by his efforts. He rested for out a moment, then dashed up the stairs of the building next door and to the roof, and tried to descend into the burning building by way of the skylight. Again he was overcome and was compelled to give up his efforts.

In the meantime the firemen had arrived and did good work in helping the tenants down the fire-escapes. George Quentel, a young man living on the top floor, was partially overcome by the smoke and had to be carried to the roof by his brother Ferdinand.

Sugar snow to-day; there's money in it—bounty.

Maryland is struggling with its free ballot law. Naturally the machines are both "agin' it."

The new census of New York shows an increase of 286,000 over the figures of Mr. Porter.

"See what we have done for the country," shouts the ruling party. "See what the country has been able to do for itself in spite of your infamous legislation," is the answer.

The emperor of Germany says and does some very whimsical things, but it sort of warms one's blood to hear him remark to the autocrat of the Russias, if you give me any sass I'll send my soldiers over the border to pulverize you.

"How was the democratic majority in the house procured?" shouted Congressman Williams of Massachusetts. "By lying," was the prompt reply of Congressman Boutelle of Maine.—Dispatch. Lying that could offset republican stealing deserves to go on record.

An increase in bogus maple sugar is the next thing, since the bounty provision was made. The old Vermonters are right in it, making hay while the sun shines; this bounty business will not last long. The men who pay tribute will rebel.

Philadelphia has gotten its Russian relief fund up to the $100,000 mark and will move at once to fit out another relief ship. Most commendable, but oughtn't the city of Brotherly Love first to remember the starving poor of New York, almost at her door?

"We have saved to the people the sum of $55,000,000 a year by putting sugar on the free list," is one of the campaign cries of the advocates of McKinley protection. And yet they attempt to teach that a tariff tax on an article does not enhance its price to the consumer.

The chief glory of the McKinley bill, in the boast of its advocates, lies in its free trade attachment (limited), known as the Blaine amendment. The increase of trade that has followed the untaxing of commodities shows what would come of a revision of the tariff which would allow commerce to flow in its natural channels.

The land of free men and equal rights, oh yes; but an Illinois farmer killed himself the other day, tormented to death by a trust. He had invented a new way to make twine and the cordage trust pursued him that he must sell to them or give up the business project and there seemed to be no way out of the worry but to stop his own breath.

Three thousand tons of tin plate on ship board from Wales for this country! What can that mean? Haven't our high-tax campaigners closed these factories and turned their workmen out to starve? Arent' we getting ready to export Harney Peak tin ourselves? Is this the way the McKinley law protects our infant industries? Put some more milk in that nursing bottle, please.

The frantic madness of the high taxers in the house because the democrats wisely conclude to knock the props from under their pet measure one by one and two by two, in so plain a manner that the people will understand just what is getting hit and precisely what it means to them, was exemplified by Representative Dingley's speech yesterday. His taunts that they promised to wreck the whole law and dare not do it, show how the thrice-taxed wool exposures cut home.

If the cable report be true Secretary Charles Foster says he did not call the Irish "clam-mouthed," but "flannel-mouthed," in an interview a few days ago. Just how the secretary's diagram of his remarks helps him is not readily understood. Clam and flannel have their uses. The one is very toothsome and the other very comforting on a cold day, but why the Irish should be called either "clam-mouthed" or "flannel-mouthed" requires another explanation from Mr. Foster that will explain.

Henry George is wild with joy over the returns of the London county elections. It was a victory for what the English call "ground rent" which Mr. George says is but another name for his single tax theory. The London land owners are as dismayed as their tenants are jubilant. The new county council will make it their first business to distribute the burden of taxation between the tenant and the land owner in such a manner as to make the income of the owner respond to what it gains by the tenant's betterments.

Gen. Alger is in no wise peculiar from other candidates when he declares that he "doesn't care from what states his support may come," but he serves notice that he "will not use money for the purpose." Mr. Alger leaves no mysteries for the prophets and savants to speculate upon. He gives it out from headquarters. He also has a bomb shell loading for the Hon. Chas. A. Dana. If the general, to vindicate himself, must accuse Custer of petty meanness, he would better put down his feet very carefully. The memory of Custer is a sacred thing to the Michigan man.

The bill to perpetuate the old fogy ethics of doctors was defeated in the legislature yesterday. The sticklers made a ridiculous fight under the leadership of Dr. Sterrett to impose a penalty upon physicians who are liberal and progressive enough to advertise, like other sensible business men. A physician who is a specialist is presumed to be learned in his special practice, and it is very doubtful if ethical law benefits humanity by saying such physicians shall not inform the people. A newspaper notice is a better sign than a painted card upon the door, yet both are advertisements. Newspapers do not believe in hiding a light under a bushel, hence Ohio newspapers made a point to knock out the Sterrett bill. The decisive vote in the legislature made Old Ethics very sick—sick unto the undertaker's care.

The San Francisco Call says: "Andrew Carnegie, 'the plain American,' is with us to-day. He came in a private Pullman hotel car, $50 a day rent, the fares of his party and incidental expenses to be added thereto." Mr. Carnegie as an "almoner of the poor" has cut down his workmen's wages frequently, and his surplus is getting burdensome. He may build another monument to himself and call it a library or college and so is out looking for hints, desirable location, etc.

When Miserole, the murderer who was acquitted would join Plymouth church, the good people objected. He did every winning thing he could think of and at last sold his seat in the New York Stock Exchange. That brought it; the bars were let down and he was taken into the fold.

Rev. Morgan Dix concludes, publicly, that there is "a personal devil." Rev. Joseph Cook says "a bottomless hell is preached too little in Boston." Now let the wicked cities of the east take their sheol and satan in such doses as they need, and get better.

And now we are told to keep quiet and wait; Lord Salisbury is simply playing the jingo game with English politics. The general elections are near at hand.

Those who are complaining that no speeches are being made in congress and nothing being pushed through, have reason to hush their grumble and say thanks.

Pennsylvania counties are divided, democratically, between Cleveland and Pattison. Republicanally, they are resoluting against Quay to a disquieting extent.

New England's French Canadians have been going over the border to the old home to enjoy seeing their friends vote.

Eighteen vacant pulpits in Boston. Ministers such as Boston wants have either gone dead or gone west.

"Any good republican can win," gurgles an organ. Yes, but where's the "good republican" who wants to try?

They talk about the "Columbian" party, in the East. The rest of the country has to stop and think.

FROM RIVER TO LAKE.

Washington, March 10.—The project of a ship canal connecting Lake Erie and the Ohio river has had the floor again at the meeting of the house committee on rivers and harbors.

Representatives Caldwell and Storer, of Cincinnati, argued in favor of the route from that city to Toledo, claiming that this was more feasible than any other.

In speaking for the Cleveland and Portsmouth route by way of the Ohio canal, General Enochs presented carefully prepared figures showing the enormous commerce of the great lakes and of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and their tributaries.

SENATOR BRICE'S BILLS.

Washington, March 10.—Senator Brice has introduced a bill to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Jacob Wolf, late a private in Company C, Eighth Ohio cavalry.

Mr. Brice also presented a vigorous protest from the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce against the passage of any bill for the free coinage of silver. Also resolutions of similar purport adopted by Garfield post, No. 136, G. A. R., and Cadet post, N. 126, both Department of Ohio.

FIGURING FOR THE FUTURE.

Ottawa, Ont., March 10.—Anticipating a removal of duties from coal imported into the United States, a syndicate of American capitalists have bonded several valuable coal areas in Cape Breton and Pictou, N. S., to enable them to compete with the Pennsylvania mines in the New England markets, if coal is put on the free list.

DEMOCRATS LOST.

REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 10.—The republicans carried the election at Logan by a majority of 77.

Gen. Adam Badeau is still upon earth and in Washington, carrying around with him a patent in which there are millions of prospective profits, and judging from his smart and dapper appearance he is as sanguine and hopeful as "Colonel Sellers" could have been in his happiest moments.

It is somewhat rare to find a millionaire's son devoted to his books rather than his pleasures. There is one such in the house of Vanderbilt, and the son of C. P. The idol of the Third regiment of Algerian rifles in the French army is Madame Duchamp, the cantiniere. How to Become Notorious.

The three most promising methods for attaining notoriety, according to present indications, are: To attempt to stifle the voice of a political party, to rob an express train, or to lay claims to the butlership of polite society. Curiously enough, we are indebted to New York state for the exhibition of all three.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Blaine's Jingo Ultimatums.

When Mr. Blaine sends an ultimatum to a couple of women and they get the better of him the country does not have to do anything about it; but when he exhibits the same kind of foolishness in dealing with foreigners everybody is expected to stand ready to fight, bleed and die to vindicate him as a patriot and statesman—St. Louis Republic.

Poor Hand at Business.

The abuses in the management of Yellowstone Park show how incompetent the government is to conduct anything in the nature of ordinary business principles. And yet there are many people who think that the way, and the only way, to have business properly done is to turn it over to the federal government.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WITH THESE FEW EXCEPTIONS

Mr. Orwig's Jesse James Communication in the Bee Was Correct.

St. Joseph, Mo., March 7, 1892.

Editor Toledo Bee—In your valued paper of February 17, you publish an article of the so-called "Jesse James Mansion," of this place, by one Mr. Orwig, which is full of falsehoods and very likely fabrications of his own.

In the first place, the house is not, and never was surrounded by a "high board fence," neither was Mr. Orwig asked to visit the museum, as it is not now and never was a museum.

Mr. Orwig did not pay 25 cents to enter the place, as he came accompanied by his wife and an acquaintance of the owner of the Jesse James house (or "the fellow," as Mr. Orwig so elegantly styled the owner), and was treated very cordially.

Mr. Orwig is also mistaken in stating that Jesse James was not neighborly, which is the reverse of the truth. The owner of the house never saw his tenant Thos. Howard (not Powell, as Mr. O. states), excepting when he came up town to the residence of the owner (one mile from the now notorious Jesse James house) to pay his rent.

If Mr. Orwig should ever, or soon again succumb to a morbid curiosity to honor the vicinity of the "Mansion" with his gentlemanly presence, he may be surprised to find that his cheek will not be large enough to admit him, at least as long as the present owner is in possession of the interesting place. EMIL HAHN.

RESUBMISSION.

Des Moines, Ia., March 10.—In the house yesterday the question of resubmission of prohibition to a vote of the people came up, and the republicans favored it, while the democrats recommended indefinite postponement. Resubmission was carried by a strict party vote—52 to 46.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY.

Seattle, Wash., March 10.—In the municipal election Tuesday J. T. Ronald, democrat, was elected mayor by 570 majority. The democrats elect nearly all the other officers. At the last state election Seattle gave 1,300 republican majority.

M'CONICA'S BILL

Relative to the Extension of Street Car Lines

Causes Some Comment in City Street Railroad Circles—Variously Commented on.

The street railroad bill introduced by McConica yesterday, which provides that companies constructing extension street car lines in or outside the city shall have a right to use similar extent of other lines already in operation, has caused comment in this city.

The projectors are said to be Capt. C. W. Everett and J. F. Kumler, and they say that to successfully operate a line between Toledo and Maumee it will be necessary to have access to the center of the city.

Mr. H. S. Walbridge was seen by a Bee this morning. He denied emphatically that he proposed building or helping to build the line and was not in any way connected with the proposed legislation.

Manager A. E. Lang, of the Consolidated, said: "It is on a par with other similar vicious legislation that has hurt our business and that of the city. It is simply a scheme to boom real estate between here and Maumee."

"Do you propose fighting it?"

"Not before the legislature, as that would be useless, but of course if it is undertaken to confiscate any more of our property we will fight it in the courts as we have done heretofore."

"Don't you think a line to Maumee would pay?"

"I don't. We have offered to carry passengers on a per rate plan with any company that would undertake to construct and operate the line, but the parties behind it—Everett and Kumler—don't want to build the line. They have not the money evidently, and they want someone else to build so that their property might be enhanced thereby."

Messrs. Robison were too busy to be seen on the subject.

The line will be put through during the coming summer from Schutzen park, in the Ninth ward, to Maumee. The company will soon be organized, and the work of construction begun just as soon as the weather will permit.

The following is a copy of the bill as introduced:

A bill to authorize the appropriation of the right to use and occupy the tracks of street railways in certain counties wherein there are cities of the third grade of the first class.

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Ohio:

Section 1. That in any county in which there is a city of the third grade of the first class, any person, persons, company or corporation, which is or may hereafter be authorized to construct and operate a street railroad between any incorporated village in said county and such city of the third grade of the first class, and from any point in such incorporated village to any point in such city of the third grade of the first class, may appropriate the right to use and occupy, in connection with the street railroad so authorized, any existing street railroad track or tracks whether single or double, jointly with the person, persons, company or corporation using and operating the same, and for a distance over said existing track or tracks, whether single or double, not exceeding one-half of the length of the line which said person, persons, company or corporation herein authorized to appropriate is authorized to construct; such appropriation to be made in the manner provided for the appropriation of property in part third (3), title two (2), chapter eight (8), of the Revised Statutes except as herein otherwise provided.

Sec. 2. The petition to be filed in such appropriation shall, as near as may be set forth the regulations according to which the joint use of such track or track shall be governed, and if the reasonableness of the same or any part thereof be denied by the defendant in the proceedings, the court shall hear and determine the issue and enter of record its finding or order therein confirming or altering the regulations as it may deem just and reasonable, subject to exceptions and reversal for error by the court of common pleas on petition filed for that purpose; the order of the court fixing the regulations shall be made before the jury is empanneled to assess the compensation for the right sought to be appropriated; and such compensation shall be a sum equal to the annual value of such use to be paid quarterly each year in advance while such use continues.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

STORY OF ONE LIFE.

Here is a true story of one life in the great metropolis. The moral will be left to the imagination of the reader. I shall only tell the story briefly, for the life was brief.

Three years ago a young girl with a beautiful face and form and a little talent, came from a country town to study for the stage. She went to live in a boarding house near upper Broadway, where the brook of respectability and the river of vice meet.

Managers told her frankly that she could not act, but her pretty face made her acquaintances, not friends, and through their influence she got a place in the chorus at one of the theaters. The salary was $10 a week. The glare of the footlights and the sparkle of wine turned her head. In two months she was living in a richly furnished flat and her acquaintances were all men about town. She left the chorus, and the stage because they would not give her a speaking part. She was not strong enough to stand midnight wine suppers and when she fell sick she was turned out of the flat and sent to the hospital.

In three months she left the hospital, but her beauty was gone forever. For six months she sang in a Bowery concert hall. She was tottering on the edge of the gutter, but she held on until her voice failed. A year after she made her debut in the Bowery hall one of the men who had known her on Broadway went slumming with a party of friends one night. He found her jerking beer in a Water street dive. She had reached the Whitechapel district; there was only one more step, to the river. Three months later, or last week, there was a brief paragraph in the papers about a flouter found in the East River and buried in the potter's field. That is the story of one life in a great city. —Atlanta Constitution.

SEVERAL MATTERS

Of Interest to Railroaders Hereabouts.

Rates Between Chicago and Buffalo—The C., H. V. & T. Cars—Pennsylvania Stockholders—A Few Cinders.

There promises to be trouble in rate matters between Chicago and Buffalo. The development to-day was a communication from Vice Chairman Donald, of the Central Traffic association, authorizing all the interested lines to meet the action of the Chicago & Erie in making a second-class rate of $9.50 in both directions between the two points. Neither the Michigan Central or the Lake Shore has thus far availed itself of the privilege, and will wait a reasonable time before doing so to give the board of rulings an opportunity to bring about an adjustment of the difficulty. The Grand Trunk and Wabash have dropped to the $9.50 basis, and if the other roads reduce at all it will probably be on the same basis. The Erie, however, reiterates its assertion that it will meet all cuts, and if the Nickel Plate insists on protecting the differential it has assumed, there is every prospect of a lively war with an almost certain break in first-class rates.

The C., H. V. & T.

The five new passenger coaches built by the Pullman company for the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railway will arrive this week, and will immediately be put in service. The coaches are finished in mahogany, and are as fine as any that run into Toledo. The three new parlor cars also built by the pullman company will arrive in about two weeks. They will be carried on trains 32 and 36 and 33 and 35 between Columbus and Toledo. The intention is to make the cars popular by paying the porters good wages and prohibiting them from taking tips. The privilege of riding in these cars will cost 25 cents. If the cars pay from the start on the Toledo division one will probably be run south. The passenger service of the road will be greatly improved by this new equipment.

Pennsylvania Stockholders.

The annual meeting of the Pennsylvania company was held at Philadelphia, and was very harmonious. The annual report was read and adopted, and a resolution was passed authorizing the board of directors to issue at its discretion the 850,000 shares of unissued stock for the purpose of improvements to the company's property. The election for directors will take place on the 13th inst.

LENTEN RESOLVES.

The Pastor's Advice.

The sermon taught self abnegation,
Mortification and denial,
And four maids from the congregation
Thus put their piety on trial.

Mortifying the Spirit.

Said Maud—"Humility I need;
No more in lofty mood I'll pass
A seeming sower of good seed—
I'll cease to teach the infant class."

The Outer Woman.

May blushed and said—"I dress too well;
I must retrench, so as a starter.
To fashion's reign I'll toll the knell
By giving up my diamond garter."

Vicarious Abasement.

Said Belle—"I just hate chocolates,
So I will buy them as a duty
And, sternly just as all the fates,
Will feed them, every one, to Beauty."

And the Greatest of All.

"And I," said Blanche, "will go one better
Than the most lowly of creation;
I'll be a saint right to the letter
By giving up self abnegation."

Near Olympia, Wash., is a well that is coming gradually to the surface. It is between twenty and thirty feet in depth. The bricks are undisturbed and the well is intact. The bottom of the well, too, is rising with the wall.

It has been estimated that the available coal in Maryland amounts to 4,000,000,000 tons. The average annual output in the past five years has been nearly 2,840,000 tons. The Allgemeine Militar-Zeitung gives particulars of the new German invention, the lance rifle, which was tried recently at Potsdam. Its purpose, we are told, is to give to the horseman the power of shock, and at the same time of fire with the same weapon. We must, of course, await further particulars of this remarkable arm, but that it is not without some substantial merit would appear from the fact that it has been experimented with at Liefeld, on the ground belonging to the cavalry of the Guard, between Potsdam and Templin, before the emperor and the minister of war. The emperor examined every detail of the weapon; but, as we read, the officers in attendance withdrew to a distance, probably with the purpose of assuring to the inventor his secret and the property of his invention.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Some of the Great Bernhardt's Characteristics.

Fire Patrol Next Week—O'Dowd's Neighbors—A New Company for Next Season.

Sarah Bernhardt is to-day between 45 and 50 years old. Birth certificates of artists do not, as a rule, as everyone knows, belong to the public documents, and it is difficult to learn anything authentic upon this point. She is very tall, still slender withal, and pliable as a Diana. In the Paris saloon in 1876, her portrait was twice exhibited; in one of the pictures she sits in a white gown, slightly reclining on a sofa, and at her feet lies an immense dog. When Alexander Dumas saw the portrait, he remarked: "Un chien qui garde un os" (A dog watching a bone.) Bernhardt has gained flesh of late years. This phenomenal thinness was a consequence of her weak constitution, which does not, however, prevent her from drawing largely from all sources of enjoyment of life. She rides wild horses, and drives a fiery Russian span. She is passionately fond of fencing, and it is said her admirers—she has, of course, admirers—must conquer her heart with the point of the rapier. In her fabulously luxurious residence, in her mad festivities, she cultivates the traditions of her predecessors at the Theater Francais, Uuinalt and Sophie Arnould, De Seyee and Camargo, those great artists and great sinners with whose genius and wantonness the literary and gallant history of the eighteenth century are replete.

O'Dowd's Neighbors.

An exchange speaks as follows of O'Dowd's Neighbors, which will be at Wheeler's opera house next Monday evening:

"O'Dowd's Neighbors attracted a large audience to the National theater last night. The piece never seems to suffer in popularity, and its presentation last night was as warmly greeted as if it had never appeared in this city before. Mark Murphy as Dionicius Cezar O'Dowd was seen at his best last night. His singing and dancing were uproariously applauded, though there were some things in his presentation of the character which added very little to the humor of the piece and which perhaps, would have been better omitted.

"O'Dowd's Neighbors is as good as ever, indeed better. It is not without faults, which seems to be inseparable from most farce comedies, but it is fully able to provide a pleasant evening's entertainment."

"Fire Patrol."

"The Fire Patrol," which will be at the People's next week, is praised as follows in the New York Evening Telegram:

"A new play with a catchy title, 'The Fire Patrol,' by James W. Harkins, jr., was presented at the Windsor theater last evening. It was received with considerable favor by a large audience. The scenes were laid in Deadwood and New York. The story of the play is well fitted to introduce several sensational stage effects, the most prominent of which are the interior of the Homestake stamp mills, with the ponderous ore crushers in full operation, and a fully equipped fire patrol wagon on the stage, the appearance of which set the gallery wild with delight. 'The Fire Patrol' will do well this week, and it will likely prove a remunerative road attraction for the author and manager."

Next Season.

Fields and Hanson the clever musical pair with Gus Hill's novelties at the People's this week, will have a specialty company of their own next season. Fields is a manager of long experience and has already engaged some good people as follows: Jules Kellar, Agnes Charcot, Madge Heath, Al Reeves, Collins and Welch, Mitchell and Lorain, Lang and Sharp and Barron and Forrest.

CITIZENS CAN TALK

At a Public Meeting in the Council Chamber

On the Matter of Pumping Natural Gas—The Mayor's Committee Arranges for Such a Gathering.

The special committee appointed by the mayor to investigate the natural gas situation met in the mayor's office yesterday afternoon. The members agreed on a general form of report, but just what decision they arrived at they do not as yet wish to divulge.

One thing the committee did decide upon, which will no doubt have much weight in the shaping of the final report, was the holding of a public meeting some evening next week, the day to be announced later, in the council chamber, at which it is hoped representative citizens will be present to make known their views and discuss generally the matter of resorting to the pumping of natural gas.

The action of the committee is certainly commendable, and the citizens should see to it that there is a fair and able representation at the meeting.

ROBBED THE PRIEST.

Wooster, March 10.—The residence of Father Ankley, priest of St. Mary's Catholic church, was ransacked by burglars.

Father Ankley and his housekeeper were in Cleveland attending the Bishop Horstmann celebration, and until they return it will not be known how much property was stolen. A tramp giving his name as Patrick Kelly has been arrested on suspicion.

You hardly realize that it is medicine, when taking Carter's Little Liver Pills; they are very small; no bad effects; all troubles from torpid liver are relieved by their use.

ASSAULTED BY A TRAMP.

Celina, O., March 10.—A gang of tramps have tried to capture another Lake Erie & Western freight train. A brakeman attempted to put them off when one of the burly brutes slipped up behind him and hit him over the head with some blunt instrument, rendering him unconscious. He was sent to his home in Lima, where it is feared he will die from a fractured skull.

That shortness of breath is dyspepsia. Take Simmons Liver Regulator.

GRAND DUKE OF HESSE.

Darmstadt, March 10.—The Grand Duke of Hesse is displaying a vitality that surprises the physicians. He was expected to die at any moment yesterday. To-day he is out of his comatose condition and is conscious of his surroundings. He is able to take liquid nourishment.

His paralysis, however, shows no improvement.

It is the people's remedy, Salvation Oil, kills all pain. Price only 25 cts. a bottle. It is well to guard against the rigors of winter by securing Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Sir John Lubbock shows that a bee's wings vibrate at the rate of 150 beats to the second. This calculation can hardly have taken into account a presidential bee in a politician's hat. Nor does it compare with the facile rapidity with which the bee sting is operated.

If You Want Your Children to be Well

and hearty, playful and strong, give them JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT. It is the beverage for weak children, Nursing Mothers, the sick and debilitated. It strengthens the entire system. OAK HARBOR.

Personal Mention from a Neighboring Town.

Oak Harbor, O., March 10.—(Special)—Miss Blanche Moore and Mr. Frank Gardner, of Clyde, were the guests of Mrs. W. H. Mylander over Sunday.

Miss Florence Fromey, of Bowling Green, and Miss Leila Brown, of Toledo, were the guests of Prof. Geo. H. Withey.

Mrs. George L. Seely, the popular banker's wife, gave a party Saturday night at her elegant home.

The graduating class of the public schools contains 14 members. Seven girls and seven boys.

John Auspach is in Arkansas looking up a tract of timber land.

Mr. and Mrs. Omery J. Theirwechter will leave for New York during the month and from that place they will go to the Bermuda islands for some time.

Rev. James Simms has closed a series of meetings in the M. E. church. During the winter his revival meetings have been full of interest and successful.

SAD AFFLICTION.

Bucyrus, O., March 10.—An unusually sad passed a saloon-closing ordinance of Henry Witter, four and a half miles southwest of this city. His son Will recently came home from college at Ann Arbor and brought the germs of scarlet fever with him. The whole family is down with the disease, and three children have died in less than three days. Other deaths are expected.

ENDED IN A SHOOTING.

Mansfield, O., March 10.—J. E. Sims, a saloonkeeper of Plymouth, came to this city and while making the rounds engaged in a game of cards with Joseph Lurscher at the latter's saloon. They got into a dispute which ended in Sims drawing a revolver and shooting Lurscher, inflicting a serious though not necessarily fatal wound. Sims was arrested and waived examination on the charge of shooting with intent to kill, and was admitted to bail in the sum of 300.

LIKED THE OUTSIDE.

Findlay, O., March 10.—George Williams, one of the men captured Monday night while attempting to rob the C., H. & D. ticket office in this city, made a bold and sensational escape from the city prison.

While the turnkey and other officials were looking after other prisoners Williams in some manner picked the lock on his cell and escaped into the corridor, and left the building by the rear door.

Health demands a healthy liver. Take Simmons Liver Regulator for dyspepsia and indigestion.

THE ROCK OF GIBRALTAR.

The rock is the most remarkable object at Gibraltar. It is impossible to describe the effect produced on the mind by the sight of those immense tunnels, crossing each other in all directions, bifurcating again and again, sometimes lit up, sometimes wrapped in the deepest darkness, forming an inextricable network of galleries and passages, a confused labyrinth, the way out of which could be found by no one who did not possess the cue of Ariadne.

The slopes by which we ascended were smooth and wide, better than some high roads traversed all day long by passengers.

Frequently we came upon enormous heaps of cannon balls providently stored in case of need, or we found an embrasure in the living rock through which a gun was pointed as though ready to begin work on the spot, surrounded by all the necessary ammunition.

Sometimes the darkness was so dense that I scarcely dared move my feet for fear of falling over one or other of those iron monsters, and on more than one occasion I was forced to strike a match to find my way through these gloomy caverns, while I found myself nearly always lagging behind my guide, who, knowing the way and being more active on his legs, kept going ahead till he reached the next loophole, when he waited for me.

At last we reached a spot where the passage was barred by thick timbers, and where my guide told me we could go no further, as this was the reserve part of the fortress, where excavations are still being made to continue the enormous trench.

This place, he added, was closed to all outsiders; and even the officers of the English army not actually on duty at the works are scarcely allowed to see it. I had, therefore, to resign myself to forego the sight of the greatest part of that mysterious cavern, and approached the nearest loophole—the highest we had yet passed—to admire the delicious view and breathe fresh air to which it gave access.

From the cursory examination which, considering the precautions necessary there, was all I was able to make of the immense fortress, I gathered that it is an impregnable position, which, bristling with cannon and pierced with loopholes looking into every direction from which an enemy could conceivably come, makes it simply impossible for an army to seize it by force.

To get possession of Gibraltar, I have not the slightest doubt that it would first be necessary to annihilate it.—Rehboth Sunday Herald.

REAL ESTATE.

Shall an Exchange be Formed in the City?

The Views of Many of the Leading Dealers

On the Subject, All of Whom Favor the Project—Transfers Filed for Record the Past Week.

Toledo is a live, wide-awake city, and has plenty of room to grow.

She has enterprising business men, manufacturing interests, the best and most substantial in the country, and there is no reason why she will not grow if her citizens only give her a show.

It is an established fact that competition is the life of trade. This truism, under existing circumstances, is not applicable to the real estate trade of Toledo.

There is always a healthy local movement of real estate in Toledo, which is very good, but the welfare and growth of a city depends on something more than a local demand for its property.

The reputation and good standing of any city is in the hands of its citizens, who are responsible for damage thereto.

For instance, a business man owns a piece of property, but has not time to take care of its market value, and he turns it over to a real estate dealer, whose business it is to buy and sell real estate. Then in a general way the real estate dealers represent the citizens of Toledo, and the reputation of Toledo is in their hands. It is within their power to praise or depreciate the value of Toledo property. One dealer may speak disparagingly of one quarter of the city to further his own interests, and such is too often the case in Toledo.

Something should be done to promote harmony in the ranks of real estate dealers, in the interest of the public in general.

A movement is on foot to establish a real estate board in Toledo, and it should meet with the hearty approval and co-operation of every real estate dealer and property owner in Toledo.

Henry H. Cushing, in conversation with a Bee on the subject said:

"Too much cannot be said in favor of a local real estate board in Toledo, and I am very glad to see that most of the real estate men of our city are in favor of it. There seems to be a disposition on the part of some of our good citizens, however, to look with disfavor upon the scheme, because they consider it an impracticable move, owing to the fact that Toledo some years ago had a board which did not survive.

"This board while it lived was a good thing from all accounts, and died very naturally for want of enthusiasm. Nothing was ever accomplished without opposition and oft times without repeated unsuccessful efforts.

"We must try, try again and not be discouraged. The time is propitious now to make another attempt.

"Milwaukee has always been an easy going matter of fact city with decided sluggish tendencies. Her real estate men have been trying to organize a real estate board there for three or four years and have only succeeded a few months since in forming one on a good footing. Since its advent they actually claim that realty values have increased and that a new impetus has been given to the city. The board besides its immediate advantage to its members and to property owners is doing an immense amount of good to the city. It takes a hand in all public questions and its influence is felt in a great many ways.

"One instance of the value of this board to the city strikes us at home here. The Bucyrus Steam Dredge and Plow company, formerly of Bucyrus, O., desired, as I understand it, to locate here in Toledo, and their representative came here to look the ground over. While they were looking around Milwaukee heard of their wish to move, and captured the prize from us.

"Last summer the real estate men of Detroit joined together to protest against the law passed by the last legislature, which taxes mortgages. They must have seen the advantages of co-operation, as I see they have lately organized a real estate board.

"Since the meeting of the National Real Estate congress many cities of the country have started them. In fact nearly every city of any importance has an organization of this kind, and it simmers itself down to a question of whether Toledo will get into line or be behind the times.

"Our city, we think, offers extra facilities for manufacturing industries, and it is upon them to a large extent that we must base our future growth. Let us therefore do everything in our power to bring our city to the notice of manufacturers, and to attract outside capital, by showing a public spirit which is so inviting to strangers. In no better way can this be done than by organizing a real estate board.'

George E. Pomeroy is deeply interested in the success of a real estate board in Toledo, and is among the active workers in the good cause. He has given the subject a great deal of thought, and is thoroughly convinced that such an organization would be of great benefit to Toledo.

In conversation with a Bee, Mr. Pomeroy said: "There is no question as to the value of a real estate board. What little experience we have had illustrates the practical utility of a board. By such an organization real estate men will work in harmony, and a general benefit will acrue therefrom. In most of the larger cities it is very popular to sell real estate at auction. If we had a good real estate board in Toledo, auction sales would soon follow. Then if a man wanted to realize on a piece of property in a hurry he would stand some show of getting a fair price for it.

"Real estate boards are being organized in cities of any size all over the country, and they are being operated with splendid success.

"The object of the organization is to look after the interests of its own members, while at the same time it is ever watchful of public interests and improvements. Committees are appointed on streets, sidewalks, pavements, sewerage, and other improvements. These committees discuss the advisability of this improvement and that improvement, and their opinion would be valuable to the council in projecting public work. It is fair to suppose that men whose minds are constantly on improvement of real estate can give an opinion of first value. These committees and the board itself would be valuable auxiliaries to both boards of city government.

"Real estate men of Toledo are manifesting the proper spirit in the matter, and the matter will go through without opposition, I am certain."

A. K. Detwiler—"A real estate board, properly conducted, will prove a great advantage to Toledo and property holders in general. There is one great weakness or fault, as you may term it, which a real estate board will obviate, and that is the constant depreciation of Toledo property in one locality, to grind an ax in another. I had an experience the other day that illustrates the true situation in Toledo to a letter. A stranger called at my office, and after a time the conversation turned on Toledo real estate. The gentleman came here for the sole purpose of investing some money in real estate. He said he first went to one dealer and talked about certain property in a certain locality. 'No,' said the dealer, 'you don't want to go out that way. Property is on the decline in that direction. This is the only part of the city that it is safe to invest.' He visited other dealers with the same result, and the outcome was he concluded Toledo was no place to invest capital. He said he went from here to Chicago, and found the situation far different. In talking with one dealer about a certain locality, they unanimously recommended an investment and the man invested. That is just what we want in Toledo."

A. G. Wright—"A good thing, and the organization cannot be completed too soon. That is, providing, of course, that it is managed in a business like manner. It will serve to keep Toledo real estate moving and maintain a general interest."

C. E. Russell—"A real estate board is just what we want, and I should like to see such an organization completed. If properly taken care of it can be operated to the better interest of Toledo and all property owners."

T. H. Walbridge—"It is the same with a real estate board as any other business. Properly managed, success follows; otherwise, failure is sure to result. If such an organization is completed and the promoters of the same expect it to run itself, they will get fooled, that's certain. I was a member of the other board, and it was all right so far as it went, but there were many weak points which might be strengthened by a new organization."

Robert McCaskey—"A real estate board, properly managed, would be a good thing for Toledo, most assuredly. One thing, it would promote a better feeling among real estate dealers and property owners. That is one great impediment to the growth of any city. The dealers are constantly knifing each other, and of course the property is necessarily affected by this. A real estate board would obviate this state of affairs, and be beneficial to the city in general."

ROMANCE OF A PAINTER.

The Widow Who Came to Dispossess Him Stayed to Accept His Love.

There is a friend of mine, a painter, who has all the talents and no talent of his own. He would copy or imitate a Grueze or a Watteau to perfection. A Diaz by him only wants the signature, which an unscrupulous dealer does not hesitate to forge. My friend, who we will call Durand, is an excellent man, industrious and clever, but too negligent to take the initiative in anything, even in painting. Well, he had given notice to quit his apartment last July, on the fifteenth day of the month, at noon, according to the customs of the country.

He had, however, been so absorbed in his painting that he had forgotten to retain a wagon to take away his furniture, and when he did at last concern himself about the matter he only succeeded in securing one for the end of the day. But at noon precisely, just as he was putting the finishing touches to a copy of Greuze's famous "Cruche-Cassee," there came an imperious knock at the door. It was the new tenant, escorted by her furniture. She was furious to find that Durand was "dawdling over his paint brushes," while all her furniture was out in the street exposed to the gaze of indiscreet by-passers. She even threatened to send for the police in order to bring Durand to a sense of his duties as an outgoing tenant.

Durand, like many other painters, thought the sea more charming than ever when agitated by a storm, and concluded that his fair visitor was rendered more beautiful by her anger. She was about 25 years of age. She had dark hair and blue eyes, a fine, supple figure, and her pretty nostrils were slightly dilated by her emotion. She was accompanied by a little girl of 6 years of age—a little golden-haired fairy. "What!" continued the irate lady, "you are not going away until 5 o'clock? It is absurd! What am I to do with my furniture? Where is the proprietor? I must see the proprietor!" It was impossible to gratify her last wish. The concierge alone was available, but the newcomer was so terrible, so aggressive and so threatening that Cerebus was tamed and ran away, leaving his broom behind him.

Durand ought, according to his system of imitation, to have become wrathful, too, but his adversary was a pretty woman, so he sought an ally. The little girl was playing with a shepherdess in porcelaine de Saxe that adorned one end of the chimney piece. "Should you like it?" "Oh! yes; it is so pretty." "Take it." "Jeanne," said the mother, "I forbid you to accept anything." "If it were only to please her," replied Durand, "I could understand your prohibition, but it is an economy for me. I shall have so much less to move."

Women are ready laughers. The lady fixed her eyes on the wall in order to keep her countenance. "Your name is Jeanne?" said the painter. "Yes," answered the child. "And your papa—where is he?" "He died two years ago." "And mamma is a widow?" "Yes, monsieur."

Then turning to the lady, Durand apologized for his sins, told her that he had cleared one room and that he would go and help her get her furniture in. Soon the furniture began to find its place—the wardrobe, the mirror, the bookcase. "Oh, madame, without knowing you, as I look at these books I can read your mind. Balzac, Hugo, Lamartine"—"Ta, ta, ta," cried the irate lady, "you would have done better to clear out before noon than to be trying to study my character!"

"I am working all the time, madam. Look! I have put that console there—here the statue of the Virgin—this little mirror opposite the window." "Oh, it is no use; you cannot make peace with me!"

There was an interval of 20 minutes, during which the lady stood at the window. Durand had remainned in his room with the child. "Are they coming to-day or to-morrow—your men?" she asked angrily, as she came back into the room. But she stopped in the middle. Jeanne, motionless and smiling, was seated on a chair and Durand was painting her portrait. "Mamma," said the little one, suddenly, "I am hungry. You have some wine and a cake in the big basket." "Come, then, and breakfast on the balcony," murmured the mother. Durand was left alone to finish his sketch. There was a silence of 10 minutes. Then the child returned timidly. "Mamma has something to ask you." "What?" "She does not dare." "She wants to turn me out?" "No." "What, then?" "Mamma would like to know if you—if you would like a piece of pate."

This happened on July 15, and when the concierge arrived, all trembling, to announce that the men had at last come to remove Durand's furniture he found him sitting on the balcony at table with the mother and dandling the child on his knees.

Misfortunes, however, never come alone. The wagon was too small. It would not hold all Durand's things at once. "Leave your palette, your easel and your pictures," said Jeanne; "I will take care of them, and then you will be obliged to come back again and finish my picture." He left them. He only came into possession of them two days ago, January 15, when he brought all his furniture back into his own room. This time, however, there was no difficulty about the outgoing tenant, for she had, meanwhile, become Durand's wife, and the two households were merged into one.—Paris Letter to Philadelphia Bulletin.

The society for the prevention of smoke gives grateful signs of enlistment for the war, says the Chicago Post. Strange as it seems to anyone having a gleam of recognition of the duty of the individual to the public and that of the citizen to the city, the proprietors of many of the establishments whose chimneys are insufferable, notwithstanding the courteous complaint of the society and the definite pointing out of the manner in which defects could be remedied at a comparatively trifling cost, have absolutely refused to take the first step toward reform. It is the intention of the society now to proceed against these offenders legally with all possible vigor, and Mayor Washburne most commendably offers all the assistance in his power. The law against smoke nuisance is probably adequate, but if a trial shall reveal its weakness a better one will be speedily devised.

A Sweet Breath.

To be assured at all times that the breath is not offensive, an agreeable, safe and effective way is to rinse the mouth and gargle the throat daily with that new and effective liquid, "ROUGH ON CATARRH," a pure, clean, clear, antiseptic; a very remarkably effective gargle for diphtheritic, in fact every form of sore throat in children or adults. Keep it always convenient at hand for emergencies. Cures catarrhal throat affections; clears the head, nose and throat from all offensive or diseased collections. 50c. at Druggists, or two bottles prepaid by express for $1. E. S. Wells, Jersey City.

The Red Bug.

In hot weather he's about. To quickly and permanently rid your beds of bugs, put a small box of ROUGH ON RATS in a pint bottle of benzine, shake well when using. Douche the mixture into the cracks, crevices, holes and openings of the bedstead. It will turn their toes up rapidly. Then mix another small box of ROUGH ON RATS thoroughly with a quarter pound of lard, with this mixture fill all holes, openings, cracks and crevices in the bed. These two methods are warranted to never fail; to be effective and lasting. Cut this out.

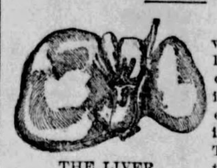
OUR LIVER IN SPRING.

What People Ought to Know of It.

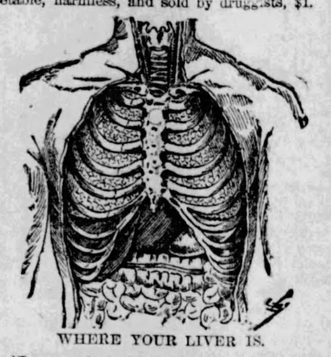


THE LIVER

The nerves which control our liver often become weakened, irritated, diseased especially in the Spring. The function of the liver is disturbed, and torpid liver or disordered action results. Hence the bile, which is waste and poisonous material designed to be expelled, is not properly secreted and eliminated from the body. Thus retained, it causes indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, bloating, biliousness, constipation, bad taste, malaria, headache, dizziness, dull head, nervousness, and, particularly during Spring, weak, languid and tired feeling. If not cured, this condition LEADS TO FATAL LIVER AND KIDNEY DISEASES. All persons need a medicine to stimulate and regulate the liver and strengthen their nerve force in the spring.

The Grip also, had a peculiarly weakening effect upon the nerves and liver and thousands who had this disease have never recovered their former health.

The best remedy and most certain cure for liver complaints and weak nerves is Dr. Greene's Nervura, which restores digestion, corrects the disordered liver, regulates the bowels, invigorates the blood and by strengthening and vitalizing the nerves, re-establishes health and strength. It is purely vegetable, harmless, and sold by druggists, $1.



WHERE YOUR LIVER IS.

"I was taken sick with liver disease and ulceration of the bowels; my heart was also affected. I was finally confined to my bed three months. A consultation of physicians was held, and I was pronounced incurable. After that I stopped taking their remedies, and began the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura. Previous to this I could not sleep, my nerves were excitable and spasmodic, my stomach would not bear food, vomiting almost constantly. Soon after beginning Dr. Greene's Nervura I slept better, and my stomach would bear light food. I continued to gain until I could get out. I now work the greater portion of the time, and feel that Dr. Greene's Nervura SAVED MY LIFE.

Doings of Our Law Makers at Columbus.

Sterrett's Bill Killed by the Amendments.

New Laws Governing the Schools in Sub-Districts—General News From the State Capital.

Columbus, March 10.—(Special)—This legislature is tearing up the school laws of the state to satisfy every disgruntled teacher, member of board of education and alleged statesmen. In the senate yesterday afternoon a bill was enacted into a law that provides that county school examiners shall have power to conduct examinations in all common branches each year at the county seat for the examination of all students of the sub and special rural districts, who shall desire such examination.

The examination shall be such as to enable the successful applicant to enter the high school in the county, and they shall receive a diploma of graduation on delivering a declamtion or oration in some public place appointed by the clerk. The tuition of such graduates as may attend any village or city school of the county shall be paid by the board of education of the sub-district from which they come.

Bills Introduced in the Senate.

The following bills were introduced in the senate:

Mr. Hildebrand—To appropriate $900 in pay Capt. H. H. Tickles, of Richland county, for services rendered in recruiting troops for the late war.

Mr. Rorick—To authorize the street railroad company building from Maumee city to Toledo to condemn property and use tracks of other companies.

Mr. Eckley—To appropriate $2,000 for the erection of a monument over the grave of John G. Loyd, late of the Thirteenth O. V. I., who was killed while planting the colors of his regiment on Mission Ridge.

Mr. Carpenter, of Fayette—To transfer Pickaway county from the third sub-division of the fifth judicial district to the first sub-division of the seventh district and to transfer Madison county from the third sub-division of the fifth district to the third sub-division of the tenth district and thus make a separate district of Franklin county.

The Old Roman.

Twenty-five democratic members of the general assembly, escorted by ex-Mayor Bruck, of this city, paid their respects to Allen G. Thurman last night.

Though quite feeble, Mr. Thurman made a brief address recalling the glorious work that the democracy has done and has to do for this nation, but avoiding reference to present issues. He was enjoying old age, satisfied with his life's work and confident that when St. Peter asked, in response to his knock, who was there and heard in response Thurman the Democrat, he would be promptly be admitted.

During his speech he drew his bandana from his pocket, which called forth many jocular remarks concerning the campaign of 1888, between the venerable statesman and his friends.

Railroad Bill.

Senator Gear has succeeded in passing his bill compelling railroad companies to equip frogs and switches with iron, steel or hard wood safety guards, or any other device which will make a positive foot guard. Provided, however, that such equipage shall not absolve railroad companies from any responsibility for accidents.

If any railroad company officials refuse to comply with this law they shall be held guilty of misdemeanor and fined in any sum not less than $100 nor more than $300, for each instance of violation. Prosecuting attorneys are required to look after the enforcement of this law.

For the Money Power.

The republican senate to-day passed a bill allowing the centralization of money power of the larger cities. It gives the probate court authority to appoint safe deposit and trust companies executors, administrator, assignee, guardian, receiver or trustee of any estate or property. The bill was viciously fought for nearly two hours, and Clerk Carrie held the roll open for absent senators to come in and vote.

Dayton's Ripper.

The house has passed a bill reorganizing the city of Dayton. Judge Shanck, of the district court, will appoint a tax commission of six members, which will appoint four members of a board to be known as the board of city affairs. All boards will be non-partisan. The whole affair is compromise between the republican factions and democrats. Democratic city clerk is allowed to retain his office. Members of boards are to serve one, two, three and four years. At the expiration of the term the mayor has the power to fill the vacancy from the political party to which the retiring member belonged.

Republican Caucus.

The republican members of the house are holding a caucus this afternoon to consider the congressional redistricting bill.

No positive action will be taken to-day. A committee will be appointed to prepare amendments to the senate bill and report them to another caucus to be held next week.

Notes.

Jesse L. Cameron was confirmed as trustee of the Soldiers' and Sailors' home at Sandusky.

Mr. Hildebrand's bill prohibiting the storing of dynamite within 50 rods of any occupied dwelling within the limits of any municipal corporation has passed the house.

Workman's bill ripping up the city of Kenton, which was the special order for 2:30 o'clock, was, on account of the Sterrett bill, postponed until Wednesday of next week.

Gov. McKinley yesterday afternoon sent to the senate the name of Charles E. Ink, of Columbiana, as member of the state board of pharmacy. It was referred to the committee on medical colleges.

The house yesterday afternoon took up the Sterrett physicians' bill and after nearly every member had offered an original amendment as well as an amendment to an amendment the bill had become so ridiculous that the author and its friends saw there was no chance for life, and it was on motion, indefinitely postponed.

Mr. McConica's senate bill authorizing Findlay to issue $100,000 bonds for improvements and to pay a bonus to manufacturing establishments passed after considerable discussion. A majority of the electors will now have to say whether the bonds will be re-issued, as the bill provides it shall be submitted to a vote of the electors.

MURDER IN HIS HEART.

A Lover Who Commenced on the Wrong Person.

Memphis, Tenn., March 10.—At 1 o'clock this morning Herman Krouse tried to murder his sweetheart, Margaret Conrad, and believing that her injuries would prove fatal, placed the muzzle of his revolver in his own mouth and killed himself.

The affair occurred at Henry Busses' hotel, where both were boarding. Miss Conrad is a sister of the landlady, and had several times rejected a proposal of marriage from Krouse.

Miss Conrad was wounded in the head but will probably recover.

BIG FOUR COLLISION.

Indianapolis, March 10.—Two Big Four freight trains from Cincinnati to Indianapolis collided this morning at 4 o'clock near Brookfield, Shelby county. It was a rear end collision, the first train stopping unaccountably.

Conductor Wm. McGill and Brakeman Myers, who were in the caboose of the first train, were instantly killed. Considerable loss of property resulted.

SHE WILL MARRY.

Berlin, March 10.—Prince Ernes of Saxe-Meiningen, brother-in-law of the emperor, is engage to marry Mary, the daughter of the German poet, Wilhelm Jensen. It is a love match and the couple are in Rome safe from any interference on the part of the kaiser or the reigning prince of Saxe-Meiningen.

INTO PORT.

The Disabled Steamship Has Arrived in Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., March 10.—The steamship Seneca, of the Old Dominion line, reported from Ne wYork as being in collision with her sister ship, the Roanoke, in New York harbor, arrived here at 5:30 last evening with a full cargo of fruit and 300 emigrants bound west.

The steamer shows unmistakable signs of having been in collision; her starboard side is stove in above water, but the damage is not expected to be very great. All efforts to get information from the captain or the crew have proved futile.

NEW YORK AT THE FAIR.

Albany, N. Y., March 10.—In the assembly to-day the ways and means committee reported the $300,000 appropriation bill for this state's exhibit at the world's fair, amended so as to give the chief executive officer of the state commission the casting vote in case of a tie, and authorizing the commission to provide for the appropriate celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America, Oct. 12, 1892, in New York city.

It Looks Like a Go—Several Subscriptions Made—Committees Will Canvass for Additional Amounts.

About fifty representative women assembled at the Law kindergarten yesterday afternoon to further discuss the advisability of erecting a woman's club house.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Miss Bouton, and Miss Anna C. Mott was chosen temporary secretary. Mrs. A. E. Lang, chairman of the ways and means committee, made a statement of the action of the last meeting, and what had and was being accomplished.

Mrs. S. T. Fisk gave the report on the investigation of various methods of organization, which resulted in favor of a stock company. Mrs. Fisk then read the necessary preliminaries for the formation of a stock company. The chair requested an expression of sentiment in reference to putting up such a building on the plan of a stock company; the following ladies responded: Mrs. Godfrey, Miss Smead, Mrs. Brigham, Mrs. E. C. Shaw, Mrs. Rigby, Mrs. Ward, Mrs Peck, Mrs. Fisk, Mrs. Ridenour, Miss Law, and others.

It would be a place for intellectual and social intercourse and would become the pride of Toledo, as well as a good investment financially.

Eighty shares were subscribed, provisionally, by the ladies yesterday and 100 shares at the previous meeting, and there is a unanimity of feeling that the project should be pushed forward at once.

The chair was instructed to appoint a committee of 25 or more to solicit subscriptions of stock. Mrs. Lang was chosen to assist in selecting the committee. The preamble to the subscription list reads as follows.

Woman's Building Subscriptions.

We, the undersigned, hereby subscribe the sums set opposite our names for the purpose of purchasing a lot, and erecting thereon a building to be exclusively the property of women, and devoted chiefly to their use.

We understand and agree, that such undertaking shall be organized and carried out upon the following general ideas, to-wit:

1. The prime and impelling motive of each subscriber is to aid, as an individual, in furnishing the Women of Toledo with facilities for educational and social advancement.

2. The formation of a stock company under state laws.

3. Par value of each share of stock to be ten dollars, ($10).

4. Each stockholder to have one vote, and no more.

5. All affiliations with particular societies to have secondary place whenever this Woman's Building and its use are under consideration.

Name. Address Shares. Amt.

The time and place of next meeting will be announced later.

OUT OF THE ASYLUM.

An Indiana Man Who Was Confined by Relatives for His Money Is Released.

Logansport, Ind., March 10.—Dr. J. C. Rogers, medical superintendent of the Long Cliff insane asylum, together with the medical board of the institution, investigated the case of Andrew Westevelt, who, it is charged, was sent to the asylum by relatives in order to secure possession of his property. Westevelt was declared to be of sound mind, and in a day or two will return to his home.

KNOW WHAT THEY WANT.

Brooklyn is Opposed to Mr. Harrison.

He Has Paid Too Much Attention to Civil Service and Not Enough to the Workers.

New York, March 10.—Scarcely a day passes that some evidence is not given of the growing unpopularity of the Washington administration in New York state.

The disaffection is especially strong in Brooklyn, where the renomination of the president would almost certainly precipitate a revolution in the ranks. The Brooklyn navy yard and the patronage connected therewith is a thorn in the presidential side that pricks Mr. Harrison sorely.

Time after time Secretary Tracy has been denounced by republican clubs in Kings county and the resolutions adopted have invariably censured the president for allowing a member of his cabinet to comply with the civil service law in navy yard affairs. The truth seems to be that there are 10,000 republicans out of a job in Kings county and every mother's son of them wants to be taken care of by the administration.

Generally speaking, their order of intellect does not mount as high as a respect for a compliance with the law. The way they feel toward the administration was exemplified at a meeting held at the rooms of the young republican club of the Seventeenth ward of Brooklyn. It was a reception night, and 10,000 republicans were present.

The chief speaker of the evening used the following language, and it will be seen that his remarks were liberally punctuated with applause:

"It is true, as Mr. Farrington has said, that party workers have been entirely ignored by the present administration, and I believe that unless some forewarning is given now and someone made leader who can command the confidence and sympathy of the men from whom the hard work of the campaign will be expected, the carrying of the state for a republican president is something that is beyond comprehension. I speak as a loyal republican. I have been a republican since 1856 and never voted any but a straight republican ticket. (Applause). As a republican I believe in the republican doctrine of civil-service reform, but I strongly protest against the way in which it has been carried out. I believe in civil-service reform that can do something for republicans and not ignore them. (Applause). I protest against putting again into the executive chair of the government at Washington a man who does not know you and will not recognize you to-night. (Applause). I have seen what the president and the secretary of the navy have done to hurt the party and I know that the protest against their policy is as widespread as it is indignant and strong."

TO VOTE FOR BEN.

Austin, Tex., March 10.—The state republican convention last night elected four delegates to the national convention and adopted resolutions instructing the delegates to cast the vote of Texas for President Harrison.

PASSED THE LIZARD.

London, March 10.—The North German Lloyd steamer Trave, New York for Southampton and Bremen, passed the Lizard this morning.

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat market opens firm, but little doing; prices unchanged. Corn firm. Heavy snow storms. Liverpool wheat quiet and dull. Corn 1-2 to 3-4 pence up.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 304,347 bu., compared with 320,425 bu. on the same day last year.

California wheat movement.—The receipts at San Francisco in the week ending March 2, equaled 419,617 bu. of wheat and 47,625 bbls. of flour. The exports equaled 318,160 bu. of wheat and 41,088 bbls. of flour.

Puts and Calls.—The directors of the Chicago board of trade have announced that, as trading in "puts" and "calls" is illegal, they consider such trading dishonorable conduct, and any member detected trading in them will be disciplined according to the rules governing such actions. The rules governing trading after hours are also to be strictly enforced.

Exports from New Orleans Tuesday were 82,000 bu. wheat to Bayonne, France, and 120,000 bu. corn to Copenhagen.

Bradstreet's report of the visible supply makes wheat east of the Rockies increased 288,000 bu. Corn increased 781,000 bu. Oats decreased 162,000 bu. On the Pacific coast wheat decreased 101,000 bu. Net increase of wheat, 187,000 bu.

The Weather.

We have heard it remarked that you cannot always tell about the weather in March before about the 31st inst. In obedience to Foster, of St. Joseph, or to general uncertainty and general cussedness, there was a sudden and radical change last night, and while it is no zero weather to-day, everything is frozen up tight again. If it continues and increases, as it now promises, Rome will howl amongst the short sellers, and we hope they will. It is just the time for harmful results to the growing wheat.

Col. Dodge's Report.

If the agricultural department makes any report on the wheat to-day, it will be contrary to custom. Heretofore these reports have commenced in April. The wise men in our Ohio legislature, or some of them, are advocating a law against collecting reports of acreage and condition of crops from the farmers because speculaters take advantage of this information. This is the narrowest view we have yet heard of. Ignorance must be bliss to such fellows, and yet they think wisdom will die when they do.

A large falling off at Minneapolis in wheat receipts to-day on account of the blizzard raging up there reduces the total from seven points to 304,347 bu.

The export clearances yesterday from four Atlantic ports were light. Wheat 197,856 bu. and flour to an aggregate of 400,000 bu. Exports of corn, 404,712 bu. and of oats 22,776 bu. English markets, as reported herein, open steady, but dull for wheat. Corn firm and higher.

A cable from Beerbohm to-day says: "Odessa correspondent under date of January 29, gives very gloomy account in detail of Russian wheat crop. It would seem to be nearly as bad as last year."

Telegrams from Kansas to Chicago, already verify Prime's statement of damage to the wheat crop in that state. A week ago Kansas was to have the greatest crop on record. It is not well to estimate the various product until the incubating process is completed.

The Markets To-day.

It is hard work to advance prices of wheat. To-day is no exception. Markets started at yesterday's closing prices, but declined about 1c from which point the bullish incidents above noted gave the market more firmness and a part of the loss was recovered, closing firm.

Corn is lower under the change of weather which is expected to improve the receipts and the grading.

Liverpool.—Futures are reported closing 1-4 to 1-2 pence higher. Corn 1-2d higher. Paris and Antwerp are reported a shade lower.

In New York March wheat closed 1-4c and May 1-8c lower. March and May corn 1-4c, and May oats 1-8c lower.

In Chicago May wheat closed 3-8c lower, March and May corn 1-2c lower, and May oats 1-4c lower.

In Toledo.—A good business has been reported in wheat futures. The news of the day, although not of a startling character, has caused frequent fluctuations. The opening trades were at about yesterday's closing prices, from which the market declined 3-4c, but became firmer and recovered most of the loss. On the call May sold at 95 1-4c to 94 1-2c and closed at 95c, a loss of 3-8c. July sold at 90c to 89 7-8c and at 90c, and at close the market was 90 3-8c. Cash wheat was in good request. No. 2 soft in the L. S. sold in a small way at 95 1-4c. Regular at 94 3-4c to 94 1-2c and 95c to 94 1-2, closing at the May price, 95c, and steady with yesterday. No. 3 soft at 92c.

Corn—No. 2 at 41 1-2c; May at 42 1-2c; No. 3 at 40 1-2c; No. 4 at 39c; No. 3 yellow at 41 1-2c. Rye—No. 2 at 87 1-2; No. 3 at 84c.

Clover seed was a shade easier, with less doing. Prime for cash and March at $7 85 to $7 90, closing lower to sell. No. 2 at $7 70 to $7 50 at close.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE

Convention Held at Elmore on Wednesday.

Successful From First to Last—The Topics Discussed—Good Music and Instructive Paper.

The semi-annual convention of Toledo District Epworth league, held at Elmore, O., yesterday, will be long remembered by those present with pleasure. The meetings were intensely interesting, and the delegates were courteously received and given a most cordial welcome.

An excellent dinner and supper was served in the church parlors to the visiting delegates.

The opening exercises were conducted at 11 o'clock, by Rev. P. P. Pope, president. Mrs. H. J. Keister delivered an address of welcome, and Secretary A. B. Hood responded in a few well chosen words.

A committee on methods was appointed, and consists of Rev. P. P. Pope, A. B. Hood, A. A. Barber, Jas. L. Stark and Rev. E. G. Brumbaugh.

After the noon intermission Rev. H. J. Keister, of Elmore, conducted devotional exercises, followed by a paper which contained excellent ideas on "How to Reach the Non-Church Goer," and read by Miss Secor in the absence of Miss Blanche Lang.

Miss Emma Swartz told the league "How to Keep Converts," and advanced some new ideas.

"The League—a Help," was written by Rev. C. B. Holding and read by Mrs. J. L. Stark, and was delivered at the evening session instead of morning. A. Riley Crittenden disposed of "The Business Session" in a satisfactory manner.

Mr. E. S. Parker's paper on "Enlisting Associate Members in Religious Work" was well received. Rev. Brumbaugh handled the subject, "Interesting Members in Reading," instead of Mrs. Miller, as the program announced.

Miss Minnie Hales gave a bright paper on "Our Methodist Christian Endeavor Auxiliaries." Mr. Jas. L. Stark read a paper on "Our League at Work," which called forth a general discussion which was profitable. "The Junior League" paper was omitted on account of the inability of Miss Cooper, of Lakeside, to be present.

The Question Drawer, conducted by President Pope, was a source of much useful information.

A report from the various leagues was given, showing that they were in excellent condition and growing. The evening session opened at 7:30 o'clock with a consecration and love feast meeting, conducted by A. A. Barber. Rev. P. P. Pope gave an address on Methodists in place of the evening sermon, which was to have been delivered by Rev. A. J. Fish. From 9 to 10:30 a social hour was spent, after which the delegates returned to their homes well pleased with the convention.

A male quartet furnished inspiring music during the day, and each paper read deserves a word of praise, for they were each the product of careful study, giving forth progressive ideas which were greatly appreciated.

The Epworth league is becoming a power and its good influence is broadcast among a large number of young people.

HAD SOURED ON WOMAN.

Courtland King Dies on His Trading Boat at Paducah, Ky.

Paducah, Ky., March 10.—Courtland King, an old man who lived alone in a small trading boat moored here for two months, was found dead.

Among his effects were found several hundred dollars in money, deeds to a number of pieces of property in Hornersville, N. Y., and his will. Other papers show he had once been a business man in New York, had had considerable means, and left several children, one in St. Louis, one in Ohio and some in New York state.

He was a pensioner, and also had a claim against the government. His diary shows that his boat was built at Olean, N. Y., and that he had been four years traveling thus far.

A memorandum in his log also says that 15 years have passed since he was in the company of a woman, and if he had his life to live over again he would never marry. There is a plain intimation in the book that he had separated from his wife.

FIGHTING PROHIBITION.

A Stubborn Saloon Keeper's Latest Device to Dodge the Town Authorities.

Vincennes, Ind., March 10.—Sylvester Steffey, a stubborn saloon keeper, has been fighting the prohibitionists of Monroe City for years.

His latest escapade was to run his saloon, the only one in the town, with frosted windows, screen doors and other hindrances to an unobstructed view of its interior, all of which is in direct violation of the town ordinance.

The town board brought suit against him for violating the village law in the Knox circuit court. Steffey took a change of venue to the Gibson circuit court, and Judge Welborn upheld the validity of the ordinance, which the defence averred the town had no legal right to pass.

The case is the first of the kind ever tried in the state of Indiana and should it reach the supreme court, as it no doubt will, its importance will be greatly increased.

SONG AND SINGER.

I saw him once, the while he sat and played—
A stripling with a shock of yellow hair—
His own rare songs, in mirth or sorrow made,
But tender all, and fair.

And as the years rolled by I saw him not,
But still his songs full many a time I sung,
And thought of him as one who has the lot
To be forever young.

Until at last he stood before mine eyes
An age-bent man, who trembled o'er his staff;
My sight rebelled to see him in such guise,
Ripe for his epitaph.

I grieved with grief that to a death belongs;
How Time is stern I had forgot, in truth,
And how that men wax old, whereas their songs
Keep an immortal youth.
